P.I. MAY PROSECUTE REDS

Action Recommended By Un-Filipino Committee

COUNTER-MEASURES URGED

Manila, March 3.

The House Committee on Un-Filipino Activities, reporting on a five-month investigation of Communism, today urgently recommended the prosecution of Communist Party members in the Philippines as a step in the solution of peace and order problems.

The Committee said: "There is a widespread mistaken belief that the Communist Party can operate in this country as a legal organization," but pointed out that the Supreme Court outlawed the party in 1932.

The Committee said only two Communist Party members were conclusively established in the Philippines. They are the fugitive Huk-balahap chief, Luis M. Taruc, and the Manila labour leader, Mariano P. Burgos. It said, however, that at least 89 unnamed persons took the party oath.

The committee recommended the cleaning up of labour organizations, sharp intelligence alerting the armed forces until the last vestige of armed resistance to constitutional authority is wiped out, counter-propaganda, strict immigration, education of youth regarding Communism, political ostracism of the Communists.

Regarding China, the report said: "We were to neglect Communism and the Communist Party in the Philippines a little longer this country can become another China in a shorter time than we are to admit."

"The problem that a China governed by Communists will present to the Philippines will undoubtedly be more difficult than problems Communist Russia represents in matters of foreign relations. The victory of the Communists there cannot but provide a certain degree of inspiration on the part of local Communists...."

"This aspect of the China problem, however, should not be the cause for hopeless dismay. Internal aggression rather than external invasion is the immediate threat to this republic from the Communists."

The committee said if the government can crush the Communist rebellion on Luzon for the next 20 years, "then we can at most be certain this country will never be invaded by the Communists."

It noted that the Philippines South East Asia neighbours are earmarked for Red domination, and said that the United Nations must fight Communism.

The committee praised the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan, but said the United States alone cannot defeat Communism.

The report noted that China figuratively is only a stone's throw from the Philippines shores and added: "If the Communists overrun the whole of China 20 years will be too short a time for Mao Tse-tung to consolidate his forces among a people so conservative and practically twice as many as the Russians, which took Lenin and Stalin 32 years to subdue."

The committee counselled calmness in viewing the China war. It said: "We are confident the diplomatic and consular problems that might arise if the recognized government of China is overrun will be met competently by our government."

Red Domination

The report contended that French Indo-China, Malaya, Siam, Burma and India are earmarked for Red domination by infiltration and internal aggression, and predicted the South Korean government eventually would be overthrown throughout Korea.

It said that SCAP in Japan has the Communists well under control.

Regarding Indonesia, the committee said it was unfortunate the Dutch resorted to their police action, but hoped the United Nations would work out a solution there which would prevent Communist inroads.

The committee urged strong United Nations action to combat Communism and recommended the Philippines ask a Nations delegation to ask a commission to study Communist teachings and give the Red problem full airing before the world.

The report praised the United States fight against Communism but said America could not win the battle of ideologies alone. The report said Stalin's recent offer to talk peace with President Truman was nothing but a vicious propaganda stunt.

Meanwhile the Associated Press reported that a Philippine Congressmen today called for strict neutrality in foreign relations unless the United States gives unqualified assurances it will defend these islands against possible attack.

China's Mint

China's Central Mint at Shanghai has started its machines rolling on orders from the Finance Ministry to turn out silver coins in support of an economic reform programme. The mint erected four large machines for embossing process, said to have been brought from Kunming to Shanghai recently with a large cargo of silver bullion. The picture shows a large number of silver discs made at the mint in each weighing 26.697 grams and ready to serve as cash as soon as they are embossed.—(AP Photo)

CHINESE CAR OWNERS URGED TO JOIN HKAA

An appeal to Chinese car owners to join the Hong Kong Automobile Association was made at its second annual general meeting, held at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden, yesterday.

Mr. D. H. Blake, President of the Association, said there were about 800 on the roster as against 1,200 before the war. Of this number barely 250 are Chinese. There must be between 6,000 and 7,000 car owners in the Colony, of whom more than 70 per cent are Chinese.

The poor response from the motoring public has had its effect in two ways, first on finance, and secondly on the status of the Association.

On more than one occasion the authorities had refused to regard the Association as representing the motoring public. As an instance of this, Mr. Blake mentioned an application the Association made to the police some months ago, for a car park reserved for cars of medical practitioners. The reply from the police was sent not to the Association, but to the British Medical Association, stating that if an application would be made by the British Medical Association, the matter would be considered.

Car parking was still one of the most difficult problems. The police had refused to mark out certain parks for the Association, though its watchers were allowed to be on duty.

No member of the Association has been invited to sit on the Traffic Control Board. A break-down car is now on the roads on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, both in Hong Kong and in the New Territories to render assistance where necessary.

Rebate on insurance premiums, which was a feature before the war, is now discontinued by the insurance companies.

International driving licences are again available and members desiring to obtain these are requested to communicate with the secretaries of the Association, Messrs. Peat Marwick Mitchell & Co.

Expenses High

Turning to the accounts, Mr. Blake said expenses had increased out of all proportion to pre-war figures. The monthly expenses were $2,500 as against an income of only $1,000, and the Association has had to draw upon reserves to meet the monthly loss of $900.

Lull In China Civil War Broken As Reds Attack

Nanking, March 3.

Reliable reports from Chinkiang, key railway town on the South bank of the Yangtse, 40 miles East of Nanking, said that 10,000 Communist troops had begun an attack on Shan-chao, to take Kwachow, bridgehead opposite Chinkiang.

The Nationalist division formerly stationed at Chinkiang had crossed the Yangtse to reinforce the bridgehead and a naval force has been sent to Kwachow to defend the town. Another report said that Nationalist reconnaissance planes strafed the Communist concentrations in Yangchow, Taichow and Chinkiang triangular areas.

Nationalist naval patrol vessels on the Yangtse river, East of Kowan, were said to have been shot at last night by more than 100 guerrillas. The patrol-boats returned the fire.

Meanwhile, the United Press, quoting the Central Daily News reported from Nanking that the present China's civil war lull was broken as a result of a large Communist troop movement toward Sian, in Shensi Province.

The river said the Communists, under General Peng Teh-huai, occupied Chingyang and Kuotuo-hen, 25 and 30 miles North and North West of Sian. Continuing their Southward march, the Reds reached Yung-changting where gunfire was audible.

The Chinese Communist Commander in Manchuria boasted yesterday that nationwide, large-scale war is over in China.

A broadcast by the Communist radio in North China said General Lin Biao, whose armies broke the back of Government resistance in Manchuria, made the statement in welcoming to Peiping a number of democratic personages.

"War on a gigantic scale is impossible South of the Yangtse," the general declared. He asserted the civil war to date has cost Government armies 5,000,000 men killed or captured. Therefore, he said, the Nationalists cannot organize any strategic battle ground, fight a large-scale war."

Have The Power

General Lin said the Communist armies have the power to end the war within a short period.

The Prime Minister, Dr. Sun Fo, at a press conference in Nanking today announced that the Communists have agreed to talk peace with the Government some time after March 15 on a basis of equality, reported the United Press from Nanking.

The Premier said this new hope was brought back by Mr. Shiao Li-tse and the unofficial Shanghai peace mission.

He disclosed that a special 10-man committee, headed by the Premier himself, had been appointed to draft a concrete peace plan for presentation at the forthcoming peace conference, which, it was reported, Mr. Mao Tse-tung, Communist leader, informed Acting President Li Tsung-jen, will take place either in Peiping or Shih-chingtung.

Dr. Sun reaffirmed the government stand for honourable peace. Asked if the report of the unofficial peace delegates gave any indication that the Communists accepted the government basis for honourable peace, the Premier replied: "I cannot say that but they have consented to the proposition to talk peace on a basis of equality."

He said he would shortly appear in the Legislative Yuan to report on administrative policies and to answer interpellations but said he and cabinet members would return to Canton after they have completed their work here. He insisted again there never was any rift between him and the Acting President.

Referring to administrative policies, Dr. Sun said government was doing its utmost to lighten the people's burden, to stabilize economy and to promote self-government.

The Premier said the government decided to abolish the food requisitioning system, and is mapping out plans to: (1) reform the present conscription system, (2) reduce the present 5,800,000-man army to 2,500,000 men; (3) give more powers to local governments to enable them to discharge their duties; (4) reform the land system to a principle of "land to the tiller"; (5) clean up inefficiency and maladministration.—United Press, Reuters and Associated Press.

HK To Be Scene Of U.S. Picture

Mr. Otto Preminger and Mr. Philip Dunne, latest arrivals from Hollywood, told the press yesterday that they are here to make a survey of Hong Kong before producing a new picture for Twentieth Century Fox Movie Picture Corporation.

The new picture, which will be written by Mr. Dunne, will have the Colony as the scene of the story. Possibilities and impossibilities of the East meeting the West will be the picture's theme. Like many other Hollywood pictures this picture will be a love story.

Mr. Preminger is one of the ace directors of Twentieth-Century Fox and Mr. Dunne is a Fox playwright.

They plan to stay here for two or three weeks before returning to America and this week-end are planning to go to Macao.

Want Li As President

Nanking, March 3.
A move now afoot to confirm General Li Tsung-jen's position as President of China to block Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's return to power.

At present General Li is Acting President.

High officials are sponsoring a suggestion that the word "Acting" be deleted because Generalissimo Chiang is presumed to have resigned permanently.

The Kwangsi provincial assembly in a cable to the Hunan provincial assembly voiced support of the suggestion.—United Press.

China May Return Ship To Britain

Shanghai, March 3.

Rumours that Nationalist China had offered to return the destroyer Lin Fu, formerly HMS Mendip, to Britain were current here today as Admiral Kwei Yung-chin, Commander-in-chief of the Nationalist Navy, spent a busy day conferring with foreign and Chinese naval officials, reported to be concerning the defection of the cruiser Chungking (formerly HMS Aurora) to the Chinese Communists.

No confirmation of the rumours was obtainable but certain Chinese sources said that Admiral Kwei had sought advice on how to prevent the Lin Fu from following the example of the Chungking.

These sources also revealed that for the past two days, Nationalist Naval headquarters have been broadcasting frantic appeals to the Chungking, at present believed to be somewhere in Communist North China to return South. Chinese press reports today said that the Chungking carried half a million dollars when it steamed off for North China. The money was the payroll of the crew and an unspecified sum for emergency expenses.

Other reports said that the Chungking has been sighted in the Gulf of Chilli, making in the direction of Taku Bar, the sea outlet of Tientsin.—Reuters.

10 Killed In Canton Ship Blast

Canton, March 3.

At least 10 Chinese were killed and 30 seriously injured as a result of an explosion on the 300-ton Hong Kong-Canton steamer Ningpo, in the Pearl River at Canton at 6 p.m. today.

The explosion blew a hole in the ship's side and badly damaged the superstructure. The ship's bow sank to the bottom of the river.

Police cars, fire engines and ambulances breeched through the city for half an hour as they rushed to assist in the rescue work. Nearby sampans helped by picking up people who had been blown into the river or who had jumped into the water to escape possible further explosions.

Windows and doors in foreign residences on Shamenee were rattled by the explosion, the cause of which was still not determined by the police at a late hour.

The casualties of the explosion were members of the crew and some among the small passenger list. The ship was just about to leave for Hong Kong and the passengers were sitting down to the evening meal.—Reuters-AAP.

Inflation Complicates Bible Sales In China

One of the world's oldest best sellers is running into distribution difficulties in China, it was learned here today.

The Reverend W. J. Platt, General Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who arrived in the Colony on Wednesday by BOAC plane from London, told the press that China's inflation had boosted costs to three or four times what they were before the war.

The Society now has to rely largely on voluntary aid to assist in the distribution of the Bible. Before the war with Japan it had 350 colporteurs or Bible peddlers, as the Rev. Platt describes them. Today it has only 10 such men.

That is only one of the problems with which the Rev. Platt will be concerned during his visit in the Far East. He also hopes to establish in China a Chinese Bible Society, with a Chinese committee and executive.

"Our aim is to establish one in each country," explained the Rev. Platt. "We have just begun the India Bible Society in India."

It is the task of the Society in each country to assess the needs of the people so that an adequate number of copies of the Bible may be placed on sale in each country in the language of the people concerned.

The British and Foreign Bible Society prints the Bible in Shanghai for China. It is printed in Mandarin, and various Chinese dialects, the Rev. Platt said. "Before the war we printed more copies of the Bible in Shanghai than in any other city in the world," declared the General Secretary.

November 30 last year, said he expects to visit Canton and Shanghai shortly and also hopes to go to Chungking and Kunning. He would venture no guess as to what difficulties might be encountered eventually in areas under Chinese Communist control. To date, however, they have not had any trouble in Peiping he said.

The Rev. Platt, a veteran of some 20 years Bible selling in South Africa and a newcomer to the Far East, has high hopes for the Chinese Bible Society and for the eventual wide distribution of the Bible in China. They expect to produce 1,250,000 Chinese language Bibles in the next five years, he said.

The British and Foreign Bible Society is an inter-denominational group works in co-operation with the Scottish and American Bible Societies in China. They are supported by voluntary contributions. Their object is to produce the Bible in a standard form and at a cost placing it within the reach of all.

At present the Bible is being published in 760 different languages by the BFBS, according to the Rev. Platt. It is published in 40 different languages and a Chinese bible version is soon to appear.

"It's one of the world's oldest books but it's still a best-seller," concluded the Rev. Platt.

Control Of Squatters Discussed At Meeting

Allocation of bathing sheds and the control of squatters and squatters' sites were among the subjects discussed at a recent meeting of the General Committee of the Kowloon Residents' Association.

The Association considers that the proposed General Fire Station on the mainland will not be able to deal efficiently with fire hazards. The sub-stations at Tsimshatsui and Lai-chikok should be retained in the opinion of the Association.

A full statement on the General Committee's last meeting, released by the Association yesterday, follows:

"At the last meeting of the Association, the main matters which received attention were the allocation of bathing sheds and the control of squatters and squatters' sites."

"Although several semi-official announcements have appeared in the Press concerning the control of squatters' sites generally, the Association has, despite repeated requests, been unable to obtain any indication of the official policy."

"In view of the vital importance to all Kowloon residents and maintaining the amenities of Kowloon generally, the Association will continue to press until some information is forthcoming."

that in the near future further information will be available to the public in view of the impending hot season.

"The Association has expressed the opinion that the proposed Central Fire Station in Kowloon will not efficiently deal with fire hazards on the mainland."

It was felt that the sub-stations at both Tsim Shui Tsui and Lai Chi Kok should be retained. Similar views have been expressed by other responsible bodies in the Colony.

"With regard to children's playgrounds, the Association has been assured that every endeavour will be made to make these playgrounds as safe as possible for children's recreation and to prevent their unauthorized use, particularly by certain irresponsible adults who will persist in using facilities provided for children."

"For the convenience of pedestrians crossing Salisbury Road near the Kowloon Post Office, the Association has been successful in obtaining Government's approval to place an island in the centre of the road."

"A number of other matters, such as the obstruction caused by the erection of sheds in halls and stairways of dwelling houses and traffic control were also dealt with."

PWD Chargehand
Denies Sharing
In Conspiracy

A suggestion by defence counsel to Ko Lin, PWD chargehand, that he was sharing in a scheme with some of the PWD office staff by which he was to do private contracts and share in the profits of such a scheme, was made yesterday at the PWD larceny trial.

Ko, a Crown witness, denied the suggestion. Ko was one of several witnesses, who were giving evidence in the trial, of Kwok Kwong, foreman, and Arthur Frederick May, electrical inspector, Grade I, both of the Public Works Department, who are charged with three counts of larceny by public servant and three counts of falsification of documents with intent to defraud the Government.

The first witness yesterday, Kwok Hop, PWD electrician attached to the Hung Hom workshop, and a clansman of Kwok Kwong, testified as to having brought the bill for $70 for the two electric fluorescent lights installed at the office of Lowbridge Shackleton and Company. He added that sum and brought it back to Kwok Kwong, under whose instructions he had acted. Kwok further testified that he went with Inspector Johnson to the office at a later date and pointed out two fluorescent lamp shades.

Cross-examined by Mr. A. J. Clifford, counsel for May, witness agreed that there were fluorescent lamp shades similar to the two in question being sold in shops in Hong Kong. Counsel then went on to question witness further on the subject of the fluorescent lamp shades and the prices of these, after which Lai Kwun, another PWD electrician gave evidence as to the putting up of the two fluorescent lamps at the office at Prince's Building.

The next witness was Mr. H. W. Aitken, foreman of the electrical department of the Naval Dockyard. Witness said he went with the police to the two houses at Pokfulam sometime in August last year, and took down an estimate on the electrical installations there. The total cost of the material and labour used there amounted to $1,210.16, he stated.

Took Down Estimate

Aitken then went on to state that he also went over with the police to the To Kwa Wan Market and the Lai Chi Kok Hospital, and took down estimates of the electrical installations in those places.

Referring to the work at To Kwa Wan Market, witness said the work there was also partly completed, and that 100 yards of wire was used. This cost $40, he added. The total cost of material and labour was about $205.70.

As regards Lai Chi Kok Hospital, Aitken said that the overall cost for materials used amounted to $48.63.

Further cross-examination on the price of fluorescent light at shops outside was made by Counsel.

Ng Kong, PWD tinsmith attached to the Wanchai workshop, said in evidence that part of his duty was to make shades for fluorescent lamps. He testified that the two lamp shades exhibited in court taken down from Lowbridge Shackleton and company were made by him.

Lai Kin-cheung, assistant store-keeper employed at the PWD Wanchai workshop, gave evidence that 1,400 yards of single electrical wire were issued from the Wanchai workshop for a job at Lai Chi Kok on July 21 last year. He further testified as to the issue of materials for To Kwa Wan and Kowloon Hospital.

Witness disclosed under cross-examination by Mr. Clifford that he had worked under May in Wanchai for some time, and it was May who had trained him in store-keeping.

Materials In Order

Further questioned, Lai stated that by the time May left Wanchai, materials that used to be lying about were on charge and in order.

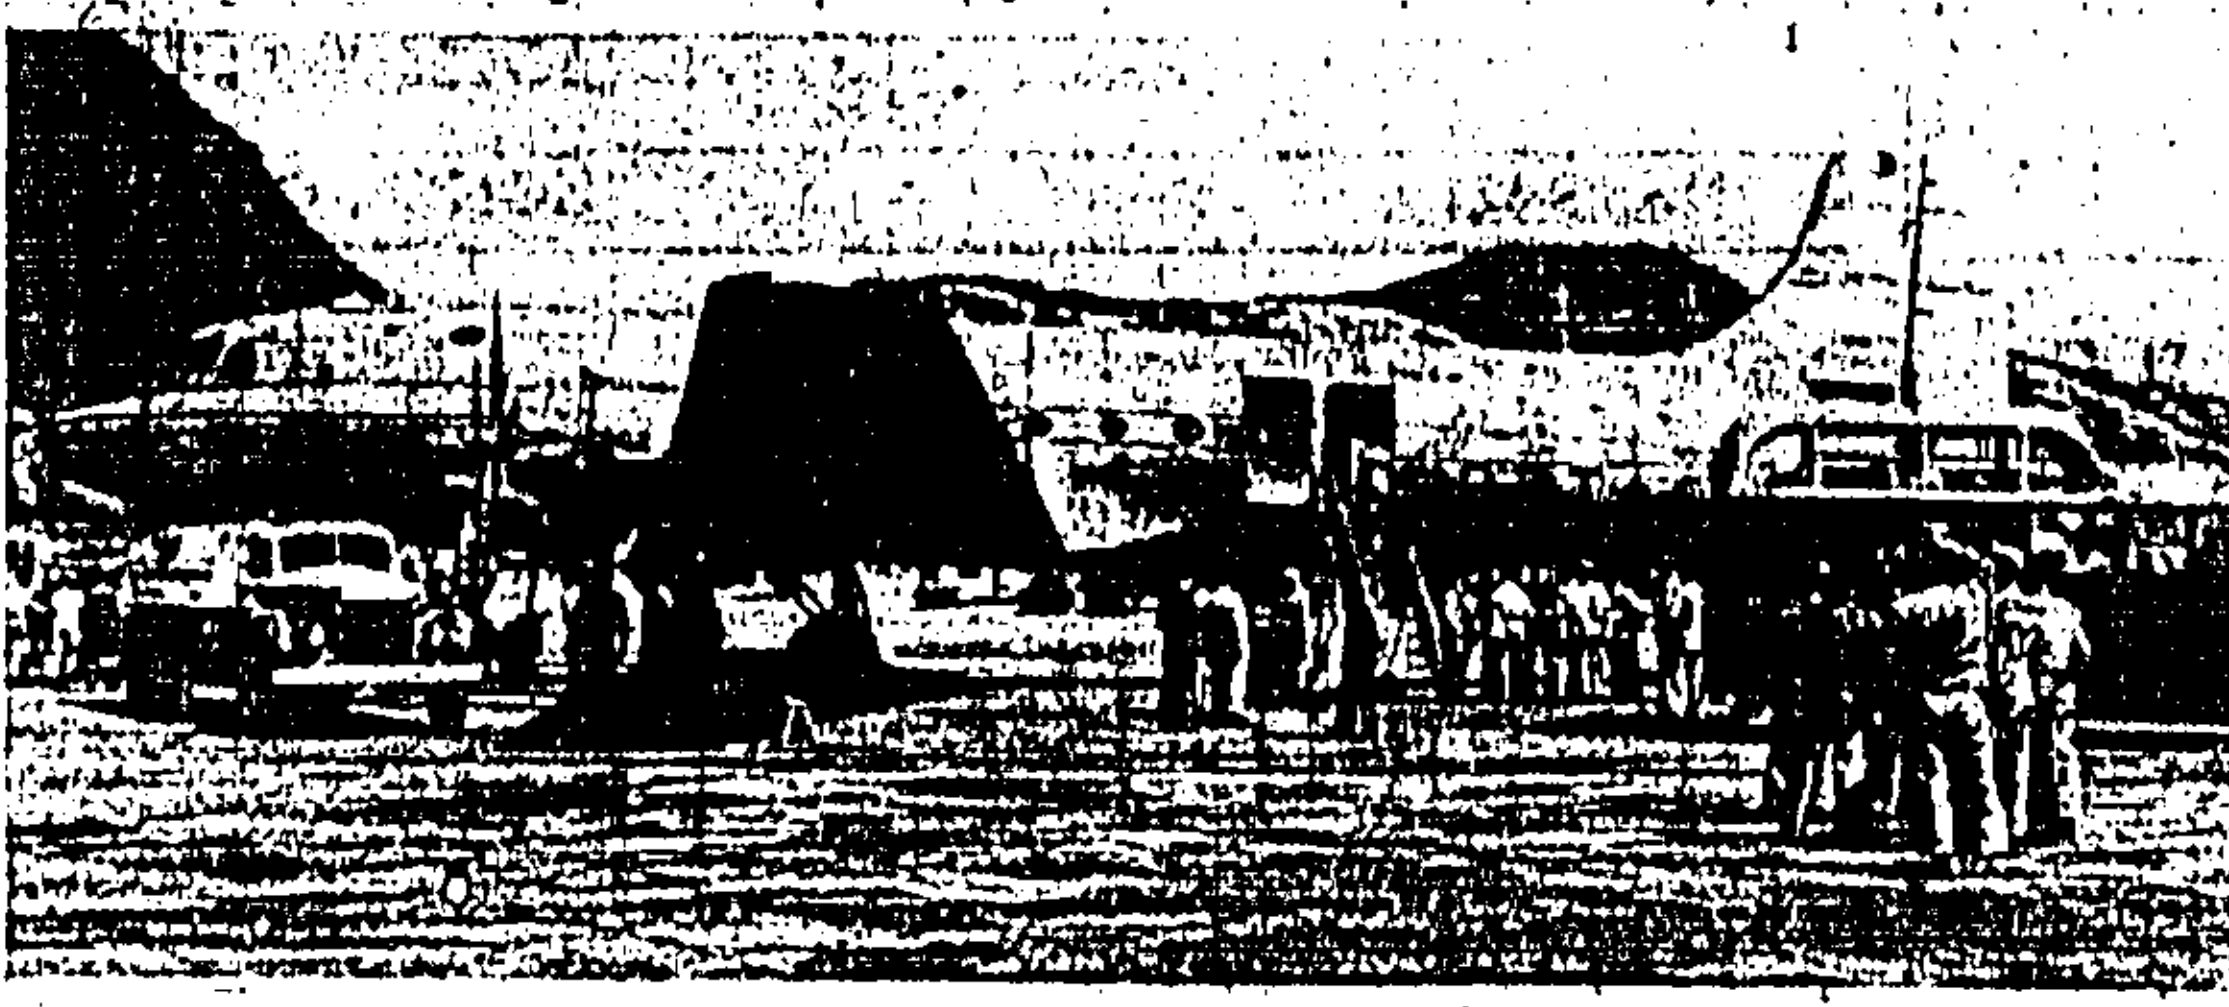

Mr. Clifford then referred to Lai's evidence given in the Lower Court concerning 1,500 yards of wire once lent out from the Wanchai workshop to Hung Hom. Counsel then asked whether witness remembered saying that he never received any covering Store Order Note for that. Lai replied by saying that the cable was on loan.

Lai further disclosed that that material was urgently needed at the particular time for a job. The material had already been issued to the job, but at the time the material was required May was not present. Therefore, witness stated, the 1,500 yards had to be issued to the messenger who signed for it on loan only on condition that a covering Store Order Note would be issued at a later date.

Ko Lin, PWD chargehand of Hung Hom, testified as to the jobs at To Kwa Wan and Lai Chi Kok Hospital. He denied a suggestion from Mr. Clifford that he was sharing in a scheme with Kwok Kwong and the other office staff by which he was to do private contracts and share in the profits of such a scheme.

Corroborative evidence was given by other PWD workers, including B. Agaturoff, PWD pay officer, who explained the system of paying the workers.

Hearing will continue this morning.

Indian Survey Plane Arrives

Red Army Man Shot Dead In British Zone

Brunswick, March 2. A German policeman last Monday shot and killed a Russian soldier who had crossed the Anglo-Russian Zone frontier near Eckertal, in the Harz Mountains. It was learned here today.

The soldier was pursuing a woman who had illegally crossed the border. He seized her a 100 metres on the British side and tried to take her suitcase. She shouted and a German policeman appeared.

The Russian fired. The German fired back and killed him. —Reuters.

Alleged Defects
In Charge Sheet

Defence counsel's objection to the alleged defects of the charge sheet, led to a one and a half hour dispute before Mr. A. D. Scholes ordered the case to proceed at Kowloon yesterday.

Mr. V.J.L. Dalton defending Tam Lin-chuen, charged with obstruction, pointed to the charge sheet which stated: "Tam Lin-chuen, you are charged that on February 17, at Waterloo Road, in this Colony, you are guilty of an offence."

Counsel raised his objection on the grounds that to continue with the case on the charge as made out, would prejudice the case for the defence.

After recording Counsel's objection, Mr. Scholes said that the words in the charge sheet objected to by counsel will be de-committed and defendant will not be prejudiced by them. He then ordered the case to proceed.

TALKS ON TOWN PLANNING

Three talks on town planning were given by Mr. J. T. Mallorie, Town Planning Architect of the Public Works Department, at the Helena May Institute yesterday.

The talks, "Architects of England," "Development of the English Town," and "Westminster Abbey," were sponsored by the British Council at its weekly film performance.

SMALL FIRE

Last night at 8.45 a small fire broke out at a furniture shop on 239 Hennessy Road.

A few minutes later the fire was put out by a fire engine from the Central Fire Brigade.

One sofa was damaged by the fire.

American Freighter
Here With Dry Milk

(By Our Harbour Reporter)

The American C-2 freighter Ocean Mail arrived here yesterday from the United States for the first time, bringing 540,000 pounds of dry skim milk for needy children and expectant mothers in China.

Because of the unsettled conditions up North, it has been decided to store the 2,200 packages in Hong Kong, pending distribution arrangements at Shanghai.

This is part shipment of the world-wide programme of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, of which Mr. Chas. E. Terry, General Manager of Kowloon Godown, is the Hong Kong Honorary Representative.

More shipments of foodstuffs and dry milk are expected here, and ships due to bring them in next month include the Flying Dragon (170,000 lb. dry milk), Mongolia (107 cases of foodstuffs and medical supplies exclusively for the Anti T.B. Campaign), Formfield (742 cases of dry milk and 33 cases of medical supplies) and Norman Lykes (3,000 bales of cotton).

Although most of the shipments are generally marked for China, the lot carried by the Norwegian motorship Formfield has been specifically allocated to Chinese Communist areas in the North. This will be the first shipment.

The 742 cases of dry milk and 33 cases of medical supplies will remain in the Kowloon Godown, after being unloaded from the ship. Negotiations will be carried on between the China Mission Headquarters at Shanghai, the Liaison Officer at Nanking, and Dr. E. Eloesser, who is representing the UNICEF in Red China areas.

Arrangements will also be made here to ship the required amount to the North.

HK Feeding Centre

Plans have been drawn up to establish a UNICEF feeding centre in Hong Kong and today there are 500 cases of dry milk in the Government Stores, which arrived here recently by the mv. Aros.

Mr. B.H. Fraser, Chief Shipping Officer of UNICEF, said in an interview yesterday, "I am flying to Manila, the GHQ for the Far East other than China, which covers Hong Kong, to confer with the representative on matters relative to this," he said. There are no plans as yet to campaign for contribution here, he added.

Mr. Fraser is on a business and inspection tour of feeding centres in the Far East. He visited Australia and New Zealand recently, where he successfully arranged for the shipment of contributions there. Both countries have donated generously he declared.

The UNICEF executive conferred with the Shanghai GHQ representative recently, regarding operations of the China Mission. "Working in conjunction with the Ministry of Social Affairs," the UNICEF have nearly received their quota of 150,000 persons and 150,000 children (up to 18 years) receiving milk and foodstuffs in seven operating areas," Mr. Fraser reported.

From the inauguration last August up to January this year, more than 30,000 infants from birth to one year had been fed (Shanghai: 6,480; Peking: 6,222; and Tientsin: 5,408).

Beginning last November, the rice-fat diet programme by UNICEF-MOSA has helped 119,520 persons (Tientsin: 24,989; Peking: 24,046; and Shanghai: 21,134).

Impressed

"I am very much impressed by the smooth running of the centres, and, above all, their hygienic environments," Mr. Fraser remarked.

Established on December 11, 1946, as an integral part of the United Nations by resolution of the General Assembly, the UNICEF gives direct aid to children and for child-health purposes. Remarks on the basis of need without discrimination because of race, creed, nationality, social status or political belief.

We have collected up to date US$120,000,000 (from 25 Governments), whose representatives composed the Executive Board," Mr. Fraser said. He added that providing aid, special consideration is given to pregnant women.

Sub-Tenants
Testify
In Rent Case

Sub-tenants gave evidence in the Bluestein rent case as hearing resumed before Mr. Blair Kerr at Kowloon yesterday.

Defendant in the case is Mrs. Hala Bluestein, principal tenant of 102 Waterloo Road, represented by Mr. Percy Chen.

Ten summonses in respect of the Landlord and Tenancy Ordinance were preferred against Mrs. Bluestein by three former sub-tenants through Mr. A.S.C. Comber of Hastings and Company.

The summonses alleged that defendant received rental from the sub-tenants but failed to give notice as to rent payable by them. She was also alleged to have failed to affix notice stating rental payable by herself to the landlord and failed to pay sub-tenants.

In his evidence yesterday Mr. B.E. Pyle said that he paid defendant $300 a month for one unfurnished room, the use of the bathroom and kitchen. He had use of the gas cooker but was required to pay an extra $35 each month. All negotiations had been completed with defendant.

Cross-examined by Mr. Chen, Pyle said that he was now living at Kadoorie Avenue, at which place he now pays $500 each month which includes three meals a day. He said that he had found the defendant with an attitude to dictate to things.

Pyle admitted that defendant's amah cleaned up his room for him and did his washing. He paid her $40 a month for the service.

Mr. W. McBride said that he entered into negotiations with defendant on tenancy but did not get the length of time he was to stay. He said that he was awaiting official accommodation from the Admiralty. He paid defendant $300 a month during his tenancy at 102 Waterloo Road from January to October 1946.

His laundry and room cleaning was serviced by defendant's amah. He paid $50 each month until his wife arrived in the Colony.

Mr. C.J. de Graff said that he had several quarrels with defendant. This had arisen when defendant said, wanted to use his bathroom. The question of food had also brought about arguments. And on one occasion when he returned home late from a party he had found defendant and friends in his room.

Cross-examined by Mr. Chen, de Graff said that he was not Jewish. He denied having made allegations about Hitler and the Jewish people. He said further, in answer to questions put by Mr. Chen that he was in Holland during the war and had been deported to Germany into forced labour camps.

The landlord's agent, when called to the witness box, stated that the rent for 102 Waterloo Road ground floor is $175 per month and always had been that amount.

He said that in the early days of Mrs. Bluestein's tenancy, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bluestone brought him the rent. After that defendant had been coming to him with the rent.

At this stage the case was adjourned.

70 FISHERMEN
DROWNED IN GALE

More than 70 men, women and children were drowned on Monday when a sudden storm sweeping across Mrs. Bay overturned a number of fishing junks.

The isolated reports received in Hong Kong yesterday, said many junks were smashed on the rocks at Hachang and Aunau two fishing villages on the North-East shores of Mrs. Bay.

The reports added that seven bodies, including that of two women, have been washed ashore. The casualties are expected to increase when reports from other fishing villages are made to the Chinese authorities, said the reports.

Local Women Asked To Take Interest In Legal Matters

The women of Hong Kong should cease to regard the field of law as man's exclusive property, according to Sir Leslie Gibson, Chief Justice of the Colony.

In a speech to the members of the Hong Kong Council of Women at the Duddell Street YWCA on Thursday evening, Sir Leslie urged local women to take a more active part in legal matters in the Colony.

Sir Leslie warned that two somewhat delicate questions should be answered first. These are whether women have or can acquire the legal approach, and whether women really require the law.

He pointed out that the pre-occupation of the legal approach is a disciplined mind—a mind which weighs both sides of a question and considers only the actual facts relevant to the decision.

"To those who think that the legal approach is dry and inhuman," he added, "I would answer that while emotion as such cannot help to solve any intellectual problem, human understanding and sympathy play a very big part in the working of the law."

Sir Leslie went on to say that the women of Hong Kong represent a powerful body of public opinion which should be brought to bear on proposals for new legislation and on the working of the judicial machinery.

"Constructive and considered criticism is always valuable," said Sir Leslie, "and I think that women should abandon the tradition, in so far as they have not done so already, that laws and legal documents are outside their comprehension and are peculiar to the business and concern of men."

Sir Leslie said he thought the best results were obtained in legal matters if the opinions of men and women were combined.

"Why it is in Hong Kong that so few women take up the study of law?" asked the Chief Justice.

He pointed out that elsewhere in the world today women have not only entered the profession but are occupying some important positions in it.

"The study of the law is worth-while even for those who do not intend to practice," he said.

Sir Leslie expressed the hope that the number of women on the jury lists in Hong Kong would continue to grow from the present 2,500.

"Justice service is a valuable contribution which you can make in this colony in the field of law," he told the audience.

There is room for more women Justices of the Peace, both to sit in the ordinary courts and in the juvenile courts. In the juvenile courts particularly, their services would be most useful.

"Women who sit as lay Justices will not, at least at first, find themselves trying the more complicated cases," he added, "but they will be gaining valuable insight into the law and the procedure of the courts, and they will have both a feeling of responsibility and a growing interest in their work."

In conclusion, Sir Leslie told his women listeners: "You not only can but ought to take as equal an interest in things legal as men do, and not look upon them as a male headache."

Dairy Farm Dispute Settled

The threatened strike of Dairy Farm farm workers which was to start yesterday noon, was averted, after a settlement was reached between the men and the management. The Company agreed to reinstate the three men who had been convicted of intimidation, and also the man who was discharged by the Court. Bonds for the three men in police custody is to be put up by the Dairy Farm Chinese Workers' Association. The foreman involved in the dispute is to be transferred.

TB Claims Seven Daily

A daily average of seven people died from tuberculosis during the week ended February 19, according to official statistics released yesterday. Total deaths from the disease in the period under review was 50.

The week's figure brought the total for the first 78 days of the year to 356 deaths—more than four a day. Total Tuberculosis cases registered in the period was 851—127 in the week ended February 19.

In the week under review, 22 cases of measles with two deaths were also recorded. Births in the same week numbered 993 as against 288 deaths from all causes.

PERFORMANCE SET FOR SAINT'S DAY

A performance in honour of St. Thomas Aquinas, Patron Saint of all Roman Catholic schools, will be held at the Saminway on Rosary Hill at 3.30 p.m. on Sunday.

The programme includes an overture by the Students' orchestra, two stage scenes, a talk on "St. Thomas through the eyes of G.K. Chesterton" by the Reverend Fr. T. Sheridan, sermon, and two performances by the Choir.

The function will conclude with a talk on "St. Thomas and Beauty-Culture" by the Reverend Fr. F. Gutierrez.

A Jumble Sale, organised by the Ladies Recreation Club, will be held on March 30 at St. John's Cathedral Hall between 2 and 5.20 p.m.

Caravan Members

Sir,—I should be glad if you would publish the following:

Maybe you who read this are yourself a member of the Caravan, better known as the Caravan of East and West, Inc. but for many others, they will ask "What is the Caravan?"

The Caravan is a movement for world friendship and it is clear that friendship does not come about without acquaintance; this society has constituted itself as a means of introduction among the grown-ups and the youth of East and West.

All Caravan members write letters to one another, exchanging views and news, and thus become informed about the happenings beyond their borders. The Caravan is international, and at the same time educational. Though not yet well known in the Far East, it has established itself in 40 countries.

In Shanghai there is only one chapter, so in Burma, but each of them may lead to a 100, 1,000 afterwards. We feel assured that the result will be fruitful in the cause of world friendship. If you have interest enough to seek friendship through the pen, why not be an active member of the Caravan?

For those who wish to join, please write to:

Occupation Deals

Sir,—As a layman and knowing nothing about law, and who is open to correction, I gather from the case recently judged that the seller takes the full brunt of the deal. The buyer has the property which was sold for in Yen, but he gets away with the property and the Yen while the seller has lost his house. Not so bad if it stops there, but what happens if the Mortgagee claim for repayment in Hong Kong Dollars, which they are entitled to do under the new Ordinance? Is it possible that the seller has to pay this, he demanded, while the buyer sits pretty?

Neither party could foresee the passing of the Debtor and Creditor Ordinance; why then should the seller be made the sole sufferer—can any legal brain enlighten me—the injustice of this seems to me to be entirely contrary to British law, and I cannot believe that the Debtor and Creditor Ordinance intended this.

I wonder if Sir Leslie Gibson can possibly envisage the state of fear and chaos which existed in Hong Kong during the Occupation, and whether he has asked himself how it was possible, during the Occupation, to make enough money to all of the purchases of houses etc. etc. Surely that should have a bearing on a case?

I was in Hong Kong during the whole of the Japanese Occupation and I am certain that no loyal person to the Allied Cause had any money to spare—there was no legitimate trading, no salaries, no law and it was all one would do to exist with prices as they were. Prices of all goods were fantastic as there was no control of any kind. I existed by selling everything I had.

Large sums of money during the Occupation could only have been made by collaborating with the Japanese, and I would not want to belong in most cases to British firms or by selling stocks of goods at fabulous prices, or in plain English, profiteering.

Even during the Occupation anybody who displayed wealth and was able to buy houses, was immediately frowned upon, as an exhibit way of making large sums of money just did not exist.

Another thing which has aroused my fury is cases where some sold their houses to Japanese during the Occupation at colossal prices in Military Yen, which they immediately converted into Hong Kong Dollars. When the British came back, the property, of course, was Japanese and instead of putting the houses up to auction and giving the public a chance to bid for the

Burma Will Not Rejoin C'wealth

Rangoon, March 3. Burma does not contemplate rejoining the British Commonwealth, a Burmese Government spokesman said today.

Commenting on the statement at New Delhi by Dr. Herbert E. Evans, Australian External Affairs Minister, that he believed Burma would rejoin the Commonwealth, the spokesman said that Burma's conditions would not be improved by entering the Commonwealth.

Malaya was an illustration of this, he said, but Burma would co-operate with the Commonwealth in matters of mutual interest.

He reiterated the Burma Government's earnest desire to maintain cordial relations with Britain.

"The British Labour Party's magnanimous attitude towards Burma is rapidly converting many anti-British elements in Burma to a belief that Britain is Burma's best friend," he said.—Reuter.

Mr. Harmon Speaker At Rotary Tiffin

Speaker at the Kowloon Rotary tiffin at the Peninsula Hotel yesterday was Mr. Gordon Harmon. He spoke on his extensive travels through North China.

Mr. Harmon kept his listeners amused with his many anecdotes describing his experience of the primitive manner by which he made the journey.

There was the time, he recalled, when he quite unknowingly played host to a bandit chieftain who wholly consumed his stock of tinned food stuff, slept on his camp, and left the next morning leaving behind an armed guard.

This man was to see him safe from other bandits while on his way. They soon came across a caravan. But the armed guard proved useless even before both found out that the caravan was headed by some Catholic priest and included Somerset Maugham.

Rotarian J. Macfarlane brought the members' attention to the newly formed Kowloon Trachoma Clinic, sponsored by the Kowloon Rotary Club.

Members were thanked for their contributions to the clinic. They included Mr. J. Moodie who arranged for a chair, desk and table, Mr. B. Shield, dental chair and rubber sheeting, Dr. T. J. Hui, cabinet and stationery, Mr. C. F. Wood, clinic sign and spot light, Mr. W. T. Grimsdale, stationery and towels, and Mr. J. Macfarlane, wooden benches.

Guests at the tiffin were Messrs. J. P. Ingalls, A. R. Buckley, J. Shormcroft, B. Murray, G. May, A. H. Munroe, J. G. Jones and A. J. Luff.

SOME HOPE!

"You mean on the boats at Aberdeen?" beamed an 11-year-old boy when Mr. Blair-Kerr told him that he would be taken to a place where he will be given food to eat.

The child was brought into the Juvenile Court, on a charge of Lugging.

At a meeting yesterday the Directors of the Hong Kong Rope Manufacturing Company Limited decided to recommend payment at the forthcoming annual general meeting, subject to audit, of a dividend of 1/4 share and a bonus of 1/4 share, both free of tax.

It was reported that the burglar broke into the house through a window.

No one has been arrested yet.

If your gums flash a warning tinge of "pink" on your tooth brush, consult your dentist.

There may be nothing seriously wrong... but don't take chances... let your dentist decide. He may explain "a simple case of tender gums—gums robbed of work by to-day's soft and creamy foods". His advice will probably be "more work and resistance for lazy gums" and often, "the helpful stimulation of Ipana Tooth Paste and massage".

Adopt this simple dental health routine: Brush your teeth with Ipana every morning and evening, followed by vigorous gum massage with Ipana on the finger-tip. Teeth become brighter, more lustrous: gums firmer, healthier.

Hearing Of Fan Tan Swindle Case Resumed

Hearing of the Fan Tan Swindle case, in which Chu Yuk-chi, whose dead body was found in a trunk in Canton on November 18 last year, was alleged to have played a part, was resumed yesterday at Central before Mr. Hing-shing Lo.

In the dock was Mok Man, who with others not yet in custody is facing three charges of stealing by means of a trick $3,000 and one piece of gold, and an amended charge of conspiring to acquire fraudulently such sums of money as he could induce from one Wong Pak-lo.

Yesterday's hearing was entirely devoted to the evidence given by Miss Wong Pak-lo, a dance-horess of the Paramount Ballroom.

She related how after her first meeting with three men, Ng Yeung and Chu, at the Paramount Ballroom, on October 12, 1948, when she was engaged as a hostess, she became involved in a sequence of events, which led to a Fan Tan game being arranged.

The purpose of the gamble was to teach the nephew of a man called Chan a lesson, as Chan said this nephew of his had lost a great deal of money in gambling.

The service of an expert gambler, Lau, was called upon, and he taught them how the game should be played. She contributed $1,500 and a diamond ring as her share of the capital.

Cheung, the nephew, was asked to come, and the game was played by her Cheung, Ng and Mok. After losing $27,000 in the first five games and $70,000 in the sixth game, Cheung staked $70,000 on the seventh hand, on the number 1.

Cheung Wins

The number should, she said, have been two, but after counting, it was found that Cheung won it, getting $210,000.

The next three hands of the 10 hands originally fixed were going through with small stakes. After the game was over, she found the missing coin under the tail of her jacket.

SWINDLING CASE IS REMANDED

A swindling case involving Yip Fuk-chor, alias Yip Elk-san, Lee Chung, Tang Man-kin, and Yip Ying-ho, all of Luen Fat Lung, No. 142 Connaught Road Central, was continued before Mr. F. K. d'Almeida at Central yesterday.

It was alleged that defendants illegally obtained $20,000 from Yau Cheung-hwa, who is a present defendant, asked the court for a reduction of the bail of $10,000, half in cash and half in surety. The case is remanded for one week.

Mr. M. A. de Silva, who is representing defendants, asked the court for a reduction of the bail of $10,000, half in cash and half in surety. The case is remanded for one week.

at 8 a.m.

All past pupils and friends of Fr. Kennedy are invited to attend.

Dancing Girls Run From Fire

Dancing girls and school children fled from their bedrooms and classrooms into the streets yesterday when a fire broke out on the roof top of a building in Wanchai District.

The fire broke out on the roof top of No. 184, Lockhart Road, Old furniture and pieces of wood heaped near a chimney was set ablaze by sparks shooting out of the chimney.

When the fire alarm was sounded frantic students of the Kiu Kwong School which occupies part of the building and the inmates of a cabaret dormitory, rushed out to the streets. They thought the building was on fire.

The dancing girls were sleeping when the alarm was sounded. They covered themselves with blankets and overcoats and rushed out into the street.

The fire was extinguished by the Fire Brigade. The rooftop was recently cleared of squatters.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T CHANGE TOO FAST

ENCOUNTERING something unexpected during the play of a contract should make you sit up and think. If you had a well developed plan in the beginning, you must consider changing it. But don't change too quickly. Give the new situation the same kind of thought you used with the original plan. Maybe some inspired idea, which hit you when the surprise appeared, is not such a good idea after all, and perhaps you should proceed along the first path.

ing up the A until the third round and then playing clubs toward East, he could probably keep West out of the lead and make his contract. If East had the heart A, the plan was pretty sound, so South embarked on it.

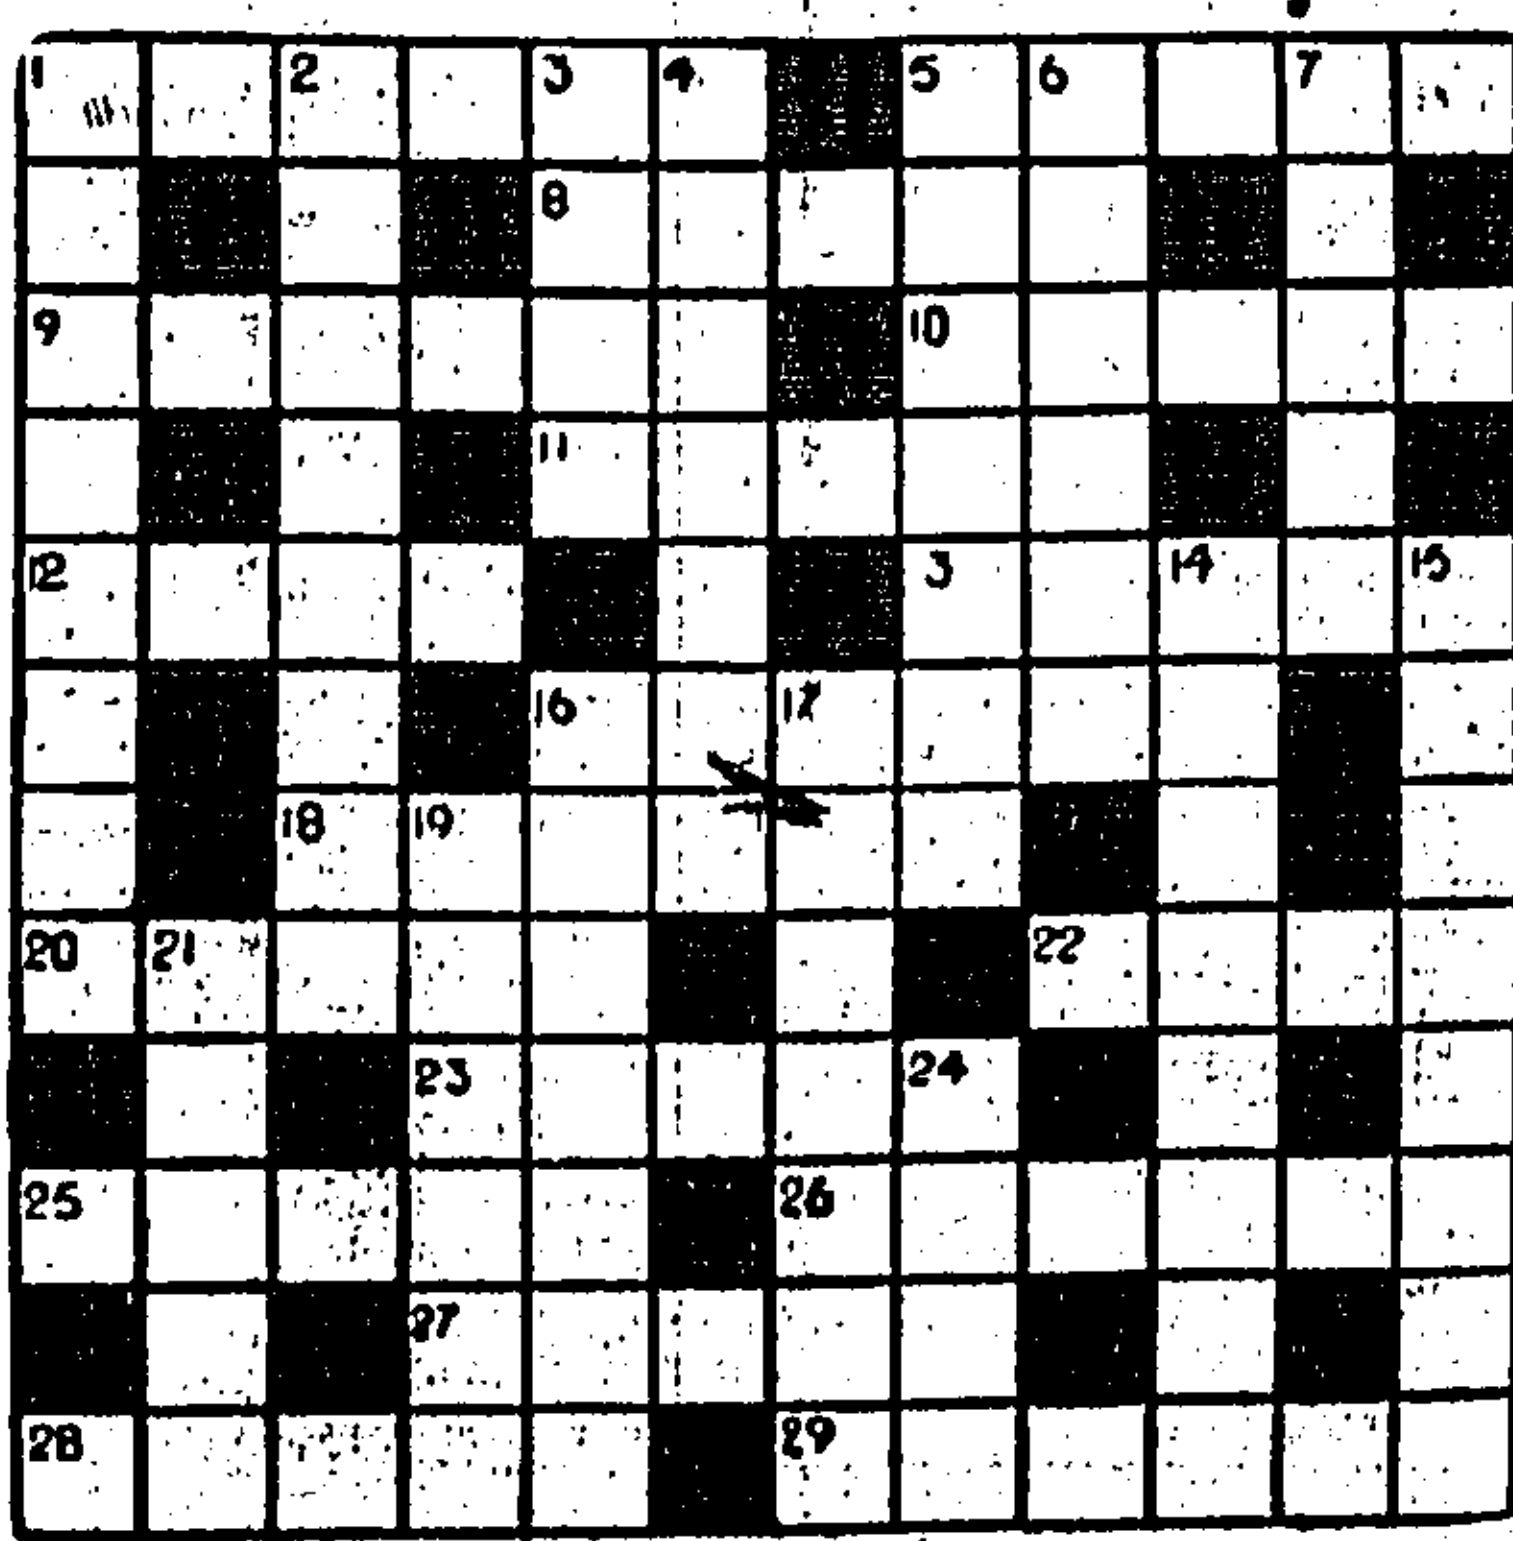

Laying down the club A, South was startled by the fall of the king. He let that change his plan, deciding that East was more likely to have a doubleton Q than originally than that West had four headed by the Q. If this was the case, he reasoned, he could clean up the whole club suit by dropping the Q with the dummy's K, so he tried that and was staggered when East discarded a heart. Worse still, he was beaten, as now all he could score was eight tricks, with three in hearts, one in diamonds and two each in the black suits.

Even with the chance that East held the club Q, South should have finessed the 10 on the second trick. If that failed, enough club tricks would be certain to give him game anyway, without risk to his contract. If the heart A was where it had to be, and it would have given him an extra trick if the finesse worked. In addition, the Q was more likely to be with West than East, after the fall of the J.

Your Week-End Question

Why should a rubber bridge player try in the bidding of a slam to put it into a major suit, if it be safe, instead of in an equally safe minor?

CINEMA WORLD

A Noisy Noise Annoys

Without benefit of preview, "The Small Voice," a British thriller made by Constellation Films, would appear to be a likely choice for those seeking something a little different. They should seek it at the Lee next week.

Based on the novel of the same name by Robert Westerly (this in itself is a good omen) the film deals with a young playwright and his wife being held prisoner in their home over a week-end by three escaped convicts.

Valerie Hobson is the playwright's wife, the gentleman himself being played by James Donald.

Their enforced captivity is shared by their housekeeper (Joan Young) and two child survivors of a car crash, Jenny (Angie Foulis) and Ken (Glyn Dearman). Ken is taken ill and his suffering adds considerably to the tension in the house.

One of the convicts is successfully made drunk but the other two are not so easily distracted. Eventually however the cries of the suffering child prove too much for the uglier of the two, a fairly thorough-going villain named Bole, played by Harold Keel.

He takes drastic action to remove the cause of his distraction and a fairly interesting climax is achieved.

The film is produced by one of the new independent companies, Constellation Films Limited, of which Anthony Havelock-Allan is the chairman. As Valerie Hobson is his wife the film would appear to be quite a family affair.

Roxy Opening Now Uncertain

It would appear that the announcement made last week concerning the opening of the Roxy theatre may have been a shade on the optimistic side.

The management say that they are making every effort to open on the date stated but that they are very anxious that the doors should not be flung wide for the first time on an incomplete building.

If the theatre should not open on March 9 it seems likely that it will do so very soon after.

'GOLD STAR' PRESENTATION

Those fans who voted for Ingrid Bergman in the recent Hong Kong Film News "Gold Star" ballot will be glad to know that the presentation of Miss Bergman's Gold Star to her representative has been arranged.

It will take place at the premiere performance, on March 31, of "Arch of Triumph" at the Queen's Theatre. A pictorial preview of the film appears in this month's issue of Film News. "Arch of Triumph" is based on the novel of the same name by Elich Maria Remarque, of "All Quiet On The Western Front" fame. With Ingrid Bergman in the cast are Charles Boyer and Charles Laughton. The editor of Film News informs us that the two Gold Stars, that for Gary Cooper as well as Miss Bergman's, will be on display in the CNAC window in Pedder Street from March 15. They were to be shown from the beginning of March for two weeks but the postponement of the film made the change necessary.

THE FOXES

In the "Foxes Of Harrow" Rex Harrison plays the part of the swashbuckling Stephen Fox who builds up a vast plantation, erecting on it a full-scale mansion, all for the love of the beautiful Creole girl he meets by chance and who is portrayed by Maureen O'Hara.

Nineteenth Century Fox

Frank Yerby found he had written a best-seller first try when his "Foxes Of Harrow" was published. It is doubtful if Twentieth Century Fox found any such phenomenon had occurred when they first issued the film of the same story.

That is not to say the film is bad. It has excitement, pace and some very good scenes. But it lacks the fire of the novel—mainly because the actors lack the fire of the novel's characters. You can judge for yourself at the King's next week.

Rex Harrison, as Stephen Fox, seems to have overdone the stiff, unbending side of the man's character, while Maureen O'Hara, though undoubtedly beautiful, seems waxen and stilted as often as not.

Too often during the film do the characters, particularly the leads, simply stand and stare at each other. Presumably they are meant to be conveying volumes with their eyes but one suspects the audience, seeking relaxation, would rather be told what is going on either in words or in action.

In case you have not read the novel, it is a tale of a swashbuckling dandy of the early 18th century who has a taste for gambling, a thirst for wealth and a positive yearning for a handsome Creole woman. He meets while he is being tossed off a river boat for cheating at cards.

In a New Orleans gambling house he acquires a large estate in a smart piece of gambling with a German landowner. He then kills the gentleman in a duel.

Showing a zeal and capacity for hard work which make his past more of a mystery than ever the dandy proceeds to build a magnificent home on the plantation he has won. This he names "Harrow."

Having completed it he persuades the Creole woman, who has treated him up till then with all the cordiality one would expect her to show towards a plague-carrying rat, to marry him and settle down in the luxury barracks.

Misery piles on disaster as the marriage fails, the husband reverts to his rakeselling, a son is born crippled and later dies and the market drops rendering the estate penniless.

However, the physical rending of their world brings about a spiritual binding of the divided humans and all ends well. The book made all this credible. The film does not.

The Surgeon Does Some Cutting-Up

Since the war ended a number of Hollywood companies has spent much time in producing photographs concerned with the sex-life (suitably veiled and sugar-coated, of course) of the American soldier overseas. Few have come up to the high standard of "Homecoming," next attraction of the Queen's and Alhambra.

In most films of this type the man is forced by the script to appear as shallow as a bird-bath and only slightly more intelligent.

He is represented one minute as an ever-loving husband delivering a gulping farewell to a tearstained wife. In a flash, or so it seems, he is over the sea and far away giving the old eye to either a battle stained nurse in slacks and a tin helmet or a slow-eyed nymph in a backless, frontless and generally reckless evening gown.

This is all very entertaining, of course, and splendid material for a rollicking, pie-in-the-eye farce. Unfortunately, it is frequently presented as serious drama, whereupon it immediately becomes a pain-in-the-neck fizzle.

Just as entertaining as any conception like the above mentioned, yet infinitely more satisfying in its rational approach to the subject and its general credibility is "Homecoming."

Clark Gable plays the part of a successful surgeon with a pate de fois gras practice in a midwestern town. His wife (Anne Baxter) and he are very much in love but lead fairly superficial lives on the social merry-go-round. They have remained childless voluntarily, mainly, it would appear, because the good surgeon is unwilling to have children interfering with the pleasant pattern of his life.

While civilian clothes are still being worn a certain amount of friction is shown between the surgeon and his college friend (John Hodiak) who is a struggling doctor in the slum area of the town, an area in which the eminent one shows little interest.

Comes the war, and before very long the surgeon is overseas working night and day on battle casualties. On the troopship going over he gets involved in an argument with a nurse (Lana Turner) who has ideas the reverse of his.

In spite of her charms she is about as attractive to him as a handful of cactus. It turns out that the prickly one is to be his helpmeet in the coming surgical battle. Here is the best part of the film from the point

O'Hara Kiri The Answer?

In a recently published book "Popcorn On The Ginza," Lucy Herndon Crockett quotes a Japanese man as saying, during a discussion of American books popular with the Japanese, that "all Japanese women wish they could be like Scarlett O'Hara."

On being asked how the Japanese men would care for Scarlett O'Hara, the man replied, "We have accepted atomic bombing and defeat. But what you suggest is worse than either. It could not be endured."

There are a few false notes before the end but they are covered by a sensible conclusion devoid of hammy histrionics and in which the sugar is sprinkled thinly.

Miss Baxter gives a wonderful performance in her all-too-small part.

LOVE IN UNIFORM

The handsome surgeon in the American Army (Clark Gable) little suspects when he first meets his appointed nurse (Lana Turner) that he will have his entire life changed by her. The complexities of his life, with a loving wife at home and a lovely girl by his side, make "Homecoming" a worthwhile film.

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S WAR MEMOIRS: THE SECOND BOOK

THEIR FINEST HOUR

Mastery Of The Air
By Winston Churchill

In reviewing the measures taken in June and July, 1940, to forestall a possible German invasion, Mr. Churchill recalls that in 1914 he had formally declared that the Navy could at that time guarantee Britain against an enemy landing.

BUT now there was the air. What effect had this sovereign development produced upon the invasion problem? Evidently if the enemy could dominate the narrow seas, both North and West of the Straits of Dover, by superior air power, the losses of our flotillas would be very heavy and might eventually be fatal. No one would wish, except on a supreme occasion, to bring heavy battleships or large cruisers into waters commanded by the German bombers. We did not, in fact, station any capital ships South of the Forth or East of Plymouth. But from Harwich, the Nore, Dover, Portsmouth and Portland we maintained a tireless, vigilant patrol of light fighting vessels which steadily increased in number. By September they exceeded 300, which only a hostile air power could destroy and then only by degrees.

But who had the power in the air? In the Battle of France we had fought the Germans at two and three to one and inflicted losses in similar proportion. Over Dunkirk, where we had to maintain continuous patrol to cover the escape of the Army, we had fought at four or five to one with success and profit. Over our own waters and exposed coasts and counties Air Chief Marshal Dowding contemplated profitable fighting at seven or eight to one. The strength of the German Air Force at this time, taken as a whole, so far as we knew—and we were well-informed—apart from particular concentrations, was about three to one. Although these were heavy odds at which to fight the brave and efficient German foe, I rested upon the conclusion that in our own air, over our own country and its waters, we could best the German Air Force. And if this were true, our naval power would continue to rule the seas and oceans, and would destroy all enemies who set their course towards us.

Secretly Prepared

There was, of course, a third potential factor. Had the Germans, with their foresight, thoroughness and a vast armada of special landing-craft, which could land tanks, cannon and motor vehicles anywhere on the beaches and which thereafter could supply the landed troops? Such ideas had risen in my mind long ago in 1917, and were now being actually developed as the result of my directions. We had, however, no reason to believe anything of this kind existed in Germany, though it is always best, when counting the cost, not to exclude the worst. It took us four years of intense effort and experiment and immense material aid from the United States to provide such equipment on a scale equal to the Normandy landing. Much less would have succeeded the Germans at this moment. But they had only a few Sibel ferries.

Thus the invasion of England in the summer and autumn of 1940 required from Germany local naval superiority and air superiority and immense special fleets and landing-craft. But it was we who had the naval superiority. It was we who conquered the mastery in the air, and finally we believed, as we now know rightly, that they had not built or conceived any special craft. These were the foundations of my thought about invasion in 1940, from which I gave from day to day the instructions and directives.

As early as the end of June some reports indicated that the enemy's plans might include the Channel, and I immediately called for inquiry. Prime Minister to General Ismay, 27.vi.40.

It seems difficult to believe willing to waive the two unacceptable ones.

Other organs are even now claiming that the peace approaches are only a trick by the Nationalists to gain time.

From the confusion, only one clear development seems visible—that at long last peace is in sight. As victory for the Communists was inevitable, a compromise ending to the struggle is infinitely better than the expenditure of further blood and treasure. The world joins with most of China in hoping it will all be over soon.

that any large force of transports could be brought to the Channel ports without our being aware of it, or that any system of mining would prevent our sweepers from clearing a way for attack on such transports on passage. However, it would be well if the Chiefs of the Staff gave their attention to this rumour. Anyhow, the possibility of a cross-Channel invasion, impossible though it was at that time, had to be most closely examined. I was not entirely satisfied with the military dispositions. It was imperative that the Army should know the exact task assigned to it, and above all should not fritter away strength in a sedentary dispersion along the threatened coasts or exhaust the national resources by manning unduly all the coasts.

In July there was growing talk and anxiety on the subject both inside the British Government and at large. In spite of ceaseless reconnaissance and all the advantage of air photography, no evidence had yet reached us of large assemblies of transport in the Baltic or the Rhine or Scheldt harbours, and we were sure that no movement either of shipping or self-propelled barges through the Straits into the Channel had taken place. Nevertheless preparation to resist invasion was the supreme task before us all, and intense thought was devoted to it throughout our war circle and Home Command.

NEW APPROACH IN FAR EAST BY COMMONWEALTH NATIONS

MORE REDS FALL INTO LINE

New York, March 2. Communist leaders here today said that members of the American Communist Party will co-operate with all democratic forces to defeat the predatory war aims of American imperialism.

The declaration came in a statement which commended the remarks recently made by St. Maurice Thorez and Signor Palmiro Togliatti, the French and Italian Communist leaders, as emphatically serving the cause of peace.

The declaration said that the American Communists will co-operate in an effort to bring the war begun by American imperialism to a speedy conclusion on the basis of a democratic peace. The statement was issued on behalf of Mr. William Z. Foster, Chairman of the National Committee of the Communist Party, and Mr. Eugene Dennis, General Secretary.

The Norwegian Communist must stand together with the Soviet Union in war as well as in peace. M. Emil Lovlie, Chairman of the Norwegian Communist Party, declared in a speech in Oslo today.

"We must stand in solidarity with the Soviet Union and the Communist Party in that country, which fights for peace," he added. M. Lovlie, who is a member of the Norwegian Parliament, was speaking at a Communist Party meeting.

The leaders of the British, French and Italian Communist parties have recently made similar statements.—Reuter

MALAYAN BREAKDOWN NEAR, MP DECLARES

London, March 2.

Mr. L. D. Gammans, Conservative MP, today warned of a breakdown in the rubber and tin industries in Malaya if Communist guerilla activities continue there.

He has just returned from a visit to Malaya.

"Few people here have any idea of the conditions under which the small and gallant band of some 2,000 British rubber planters and tin miners are existing," he wrote in a letter to "The Times."

Mr. Gammans wrote that planters and miners are living in a state of constant fear of the knowledge that they are liable to be ambushed if they venture to the nearest town even with an armed guard. Many of their friends have suffered such a fate, he added.

"Brave men can put up with this sort of existence for a few months but there is a limit to human endurance," Mr. Gammans wrote.

He pointed out that last year Malayan tin and rubber earned more American dollars than the total exports of the United Kingdom put together.

"I do not propose to go into the reasons for the present trouble or to discuss the series of foolish acts and omissions on the part of the Government which have aggravated it," Mr. Gammans concluded, "but merely to warn the country that a crisis is at hand."—Associated Press.

Sabotage Trial In Athens

Athens, March 2. An Athens military court has passed sentence of death on five of 12 students charged with acts of sabotage, alleged to have been organised by Communists.

The court automatically postponed the execution of Miss Kreit Pavlides, a Cypriot, who was sentenced by only three votes to two. Her brother was discharged.

The students were alleged to have blown up power poles, telephone lines and distribution boxes in the main streets of the city.—Reuter.

CHECKING SPREAD OF COMMUNISM IN ORIENT

London, March 2.

The Commonwealth Governments plan to make a new approach to problems in South East Asia in an attempt to check the spread of Communism.

Communism Losing Out, Envoy Says

Bangkok, March 3. India's Minister to Bangkok believes Communism has lost ground in Asia because it is unsuited to the temperaments and aims of the people of Asia.

Mr. Bhagwat Dayal thinks that even China, after a few months of Communist rule, will evolve into a unified, nationalistic country, not an offshoot of Russian Communism.

"This is logical," he said, "because the Chinese Communists apparently include a great many dissatisfied but actually nationalistic elements which are sick of corruption and of the long war."

"The violence of Communist methods is also alien to the religious beliefs of South East Asia and even India," he added.

Mr. Dayal said that a trade treaty between Siam and India may be negotiated this year. Trade controls on Siamese goods on Indian textiles and gunny bags at present limit extensive commerce between the two countries.—Associated Press.

A high Commonwealth Government source said today that a decision to reach an understanding with genuine nationalists was the main outcome of the New Delhi conference on Burma last Monday.

Government sources said: "Australia and New Zealand participated in this conference and the Asian conference. Both meetings emphasised claims by Asiatic countries to settle affairs in their own continent and made it clear there should be unified Commonwealth policy concerning genuine nationalism as defined separately from Communism."

The formulation of such a policy will be discussed at the projected Commonwealth meeting, either at Ottawa or Colombo, later this year.

"The United Kingdom Government would certainly consider such proposals with a genuine desire to bring them to fruition, but at the moment it is a question of policy to decide whether such arrangements could or should be made," said the sources.

Commonwealth Government sources said the decisions taken at the projected Commonwealth conference could prove more important than China's change to Communism.

They said: "It may even mean that eventually there will be a single Commonwealth representative at the United Nations. This would save individual Commonwealth countries from being dwarfed by the United States and Russia."

Developments point to India's eventual emergence as the key centre of a South-East Asian coalition to counter Communist expansion.

Middle Way

"It would be incorrect to describe this as 'any sort of regional bloc,' one source said. "It does not mean that the Commonwealth countries are concerned in a plan of unified armed intervention. It simply means they would agree on common understanding on genuine nationalist aims in various South East Asian countries and believe this understanding could pave a middle way for countering Communism, which is exploiting genuine nationalism for its own ends."

In Burma, the main endeavour now will be to dissociate the Karen uprising from the Communist movement. In Malaya, efforts will be made to foster movements already afoot for a Malaya Chinese Federation, prompted by responsible Malayan residents who have natural nationalist aspirations but who deplore Communist opportunism.

Defence Weaknesses

The projected Commonwealth discussions are described by Commonwealth Government sources as part of preparations for deployment of potential resources in line with the Western Union and Atlantic Pact. They recall that the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, emphasised last month at the Western Union Council of Foreign Ministers: "We should treat Asia equally with Europe."

The first effects of that Council meeting are manifest in Indonesia and Indo-China, where the Dutch and French Governments, respectively, are making new approaches to the nationalist problem.

The same sources complain, however, of grave weakness in defence arrangements in the South Pacific. It is significant that General MacArthur's projected Pacific defence does not extend further South than the Philippines, they say.

Rico Problem

"Nevertheless, with a unified Commonwealth defence policy within the framework of the Western Union and the Atlantic Pact, it should be possible to deploy military resources so great as to deter any aggressor," they add.

These sources said it will not be too much to expect that Canada would agree and that India's difference with South Africa should not be allowed to prevent their co-operation.

Commonwealth Government sources said there is little doubt that India will decide to retain her Commonwealth ties.

The problems in Asia as a whole can be attributed to the single word "rice," they said. "It is the problem of 1,000,000,000 people pressing hard on the sustenance of their own souls."—United Press.

CHINESE SAILORS WERE FED UP WITH CONDITIONS

Shanghai, March 3.

Disillusionment over the treatment meted out to the Chinese naval ratings after two years' life in Britain on a footing of equality with British "tars" is believed to be at the core of the disappearance of the pride of the Chinese Navy, the Chungking, formerly HMS Aurora.

In an interview with a rating on the Chinese warship Lin Fu, formerly HMS Mendip, which was handed over to China simultaneously with the transfer of HMS Aurora, Reuters secured the loose ends of a story of disillusionment and disappointment.

It was alleged by this source that half of the personnel of the Lin Fu and the Chungking had applied for permission to "visit their parents in the country," as soon as the ships docked in Shanghai after the voyage from England.

In most cases, the request to "visit the country" underlined an attempt to break away from the Chinese naval life because of disillusionment over the conditions of service in China compared to that in Britain.

The rating said patriotism and determination to pursue the Nationalist cause was fanned all the way from England to China, but here reaction set in.

Shocked Dismay

In Singapore, the Chinese community accorded the ships a spontaneous welcome. In Hong Kong, a great furore was created over their arrival.

In Shanghai, however, with all links with Britain and the outside world finally broken, the regime of the Chinese Navy swiftly began to assert itself, with the result that the standards of the Royal Navy were speedily supplanted by the home brand.

The shock generated by this reversal of the standard, evidenced in the lowered income, the lowered ratings, the cheap uniforms, provoked such widespread dismay, the informant said, that more than half the men realised the futility of their two years spent in England to learn the British naval code, which had been dumped overboard the first thing on their return home.—Reuter.

LICENSED HOUSES TO BE BANNED

Bangkok, March 3. For the first time in its long history legal prostitution is faced with extinction in Siam. The Premier, Phibun Songram, said a bill will be introduced in Parliament to abolish licensed prostitution and houses of prostitution.

The Premier said legalisation of the practice is having an ill effect on the Kingdom's morals and has proved a source of shame to prostitutes and families of prostitutes.

There are 95 licensed houses with 400 licensed prostitutes in Siam. Before the war there were 40 houses and 200 prostitutes.

The Government receives about 20,000 baht a year from the licences.

Prostitutes must register every three months; they must be over 15 years of age; they must have entered the houses of their own free will; and they must submit to regular medical examination.—Associated Press.

During the test a helicopter with a rescue party and photographers flew overhead and a lifeboat stood by.

Bligh's Barometer Still Being Used

Suva, Fiji, March 2. The barometer of the Bounty is still tapped and read every morning by Ray Nobbs of Norfolk Island. R.M.D. Towner revealed this when he disclosed that he has the soup tureen of Captain William Bligh, who was skipper of the famous British man-of-war when its crew mutinied in 1789. The tureen was presented to Towner by Mrs. Charles Fish of Norfolk Island, one of the direct descendants of the Bounty mutineers.

Towner said Mrs. Fish also has an autographed lithograph of Queen Victoria, sent to the descendants of the mutineers with her amnesty.—United Press.

RICE PRODUCTION STILL BELOW PRE-WAR AVERAGE

New York, March 3.

Rice production in Asian countries still is 6,200,000 tons below pre-war average, although planted areas equal those of 1939.

The Food and Agricultural Organisation of the United Nations reported this yesterday.

Asia produces 94 per cent of the world's rice crop. Thousands of Asians, FAO said, continue to receive only a fraction of the amount of rice

Tropics As Producer Of Paper?

Los Angeles, March 2.

The tropics may replace the North countries as a producer of paper and pulp in the near future, according to Harry B. Manderson, Australian manufacturer.

"Every country has been cutting its timber faster than it grows, and as a result the whole world is over-cut," Manderson said. "But bamboo and tropical grass offer an excellent source of short fibre pulp suitable for making several kinds of paper including newsprint, and the supply is almost inexhaustible."

Mr. Manderson, who is returning to Melbourne after a trip to Sweden, explained that tropical growths spring up faster than man can cut them down. Australia and New Zealand are well on the way to being self-sufficient in the manufacture of paper, he said.—United Press.

Small Surplus

2. Surplus rice available for export in 1949 is less than one-half the pre-war figure. This is because deficit areas of the world have increased. At least 13 rice countries will be represented at the first International Rice Commission meeting at Bangkok, Siam, on March 7. They are Burma, Ceylon, Cuba, Ecuador, Egypt, France, India, Italy, Mexico, Netherlands, Pakistan, Philippines and Siam.

Norris E. Dodd, FAO Director-General now visiting member countries in the Far East, plans to attend.

The Commission hopes to promote co-operative effort in production, conservation, international distribution and consumption of rice.—Associated Press.

Emigration Not The Answer To Over-Population In Asia

Sydney, March 3.

Emigration is not the solution of Asia's excess population problem, says the widely travelled Australian writer, Frank Clune.

In a discussion of the White Australia policy in the Sydney newspaper "Truth," the internationally known travelogue writer said: "For Asiatic employment and food for their own people within their borders. They must learn that they cannot encroach, without war, on the lands of other statesmen, the political problem is to find empeople."

"Their problem would be made easier if they could inculcate the doctrines of continence and responsibility among their own people."

"This is not a problem for logical fact that it seems a pity to mention it—but quota absolutely nothing to that."

On the basis of extensive travels in India, China, Japan, Malaya and Indonesia, Clune said that large families are the rule in those countries. He said that the over-population of Asia is the result of reckless breeding by parents who, in general are devoid of any sense of moral responsibility to their offspring. They merely procreate to indulge their instincts, and do nothing, or very little, to ensure that their offspring will have the necessities of life.

Rockless Breeding

He added that in the majority of these countries the large majority of women-folk are merely chattel-slaves, without education or hope, who begin bearing children in their teens, and keep bearing children until they themselves die, usually at an early age.

Attempts to reduce population pressure by emigration followed the success of modern science in curbing plague and famine death tolls.

"But," he said, "this is not accompanied by any attempt on the part of 'nationalistic' Asiatic statesmen to inculcate the doctrines of birth control, by continence, or a sense of moral responsibility in parents toward their offspring."

No Obligation

"Hence, there is no moral obligation upon Asiatic statesmen to do anything whatever by means of a quota system to relieve the pressure of over-population in Asiatic countries that is caused by a lack of the sense of moral obligation among Asiatic themselves."

He claimed that wherever there has been Asiatic immigration, racial problems have arisen, and concludes that Asiatic people, because of language, religion and other factors, are not "good settlers."

"They do not assimilate easily with the people of other lands. The question is not one of 'superiority,' but of undoubted and basic 'difference.'—United Press.

Red Propaganda In The Congo

Middlesburg, March 2.

The South African Minister for Economic Affairs, Mr. Eric Louw, told a political meeting here today that the Soviet Consulate in Pretoria had produced thousands of pamphlets which, he said, are being distributed among the people of the Belgian Congo.

Mr. Louw said trade relations with the Soviet Union do not warrant Russian diplomatic representation.

He said there are no Russian subjects in the country who need protection but yet the staff of the Russian consulate is of extraordinary magnitude.

Mr. Louw said there is no doubt that the Consulate is the centre of the Communist propaganda drive throughout Southern Africa. A special Russian courier travels to Moscow from the Consulate every month with secret documents, he said.—Reuter.

RUSSIAN'S FALL OVER CLIFF

Naples, March 2.

The Naples police said today that Dr. Nicola Polesky, aged 25, secretary at the local Russian Consulate, found dead on the seashore on Sunday night, fell accidentally from a 200-metre cliff. He was posing for his photograph at the time, they added.

A strolling photographer, who had been held for questioning was released today.—Reuter.

RUSSIANS BACK TITO DEMANDS

London, March 3.

Russia lined up with Yugoslavia yesterday behind a plan to create a self-governing Slovene province in Southern Austria.

Soviet backing of Yugoslav claims, renewed despite the Cominform's fight with Marshal Tito, sharpened the East-West disagreement in Big Four talks on an Austrian independence treaty.

The British, American and French Deputy Foreign Ministers at the treaty conference here joined in opposing creation of an autonomous province. The Yugoslavs said such a province is needed for fair treatment of Slovenes in Austrian Carinthia.

The U.S. Deputy, Samuel Reber, described Yugoslavia's further claim for annexation of an unspecified amount of Austrian territory as unwarranted and unjustified.

Russia also supported the territorial claim. Western diplomatic sources are still hopeful of finding a compromise. The treaty discussions started two and a half years ago.—Associated Press.

Communists Join Karen Campaign

Rangoon, March 3.

Communists have joined the Karen rebels in an attack on Mandalay.

A communique said the attackers have taken up new positions below the river where they are running into Government resistance.

It said Karen snipers inside Myingye are being wiped out. An official spokesman said the railway town of Myingye, 60 miles South of Mandalay, is in the hands of pro-Government Karens.

White Band PVO's have established a secret headquarters in Rangoon from where they are directing an anti-Government strike whose aim is the cutting from power of Thakin Nu and his colleagues in the Cabinet.

These PVO's, who fought the Government for five months on a difference of opinion concerning a coalition with the Communists, entered Rangoon two weeks ago ostensibly to fight the Karens at Insan.

Informed sources said that when the Burmese Government refused a fresh issue of arms and ammunition to the PVO, they stopped fighting.—Associated Press.

RUMOURS OF NEW PACT WITH EGYPT

London, March 2.

Cairo reports that the United States has proposed a three-power alliance with Britain and Egypt were denied today by a Foreign Office spokesman.

"We have no knowledge of any such proposal," he said.

In diplomatic quarters here, the reports are considered highly improbable, since the United States Constitution prohibits her from taking part in foreign alliances. This provision can only be waived by diplomatic sources, as in the case of the proposed Atlantic Pact, after the most delicate manoeuvres of internal politics.

Observers here said that an undercurrent of truth behind these alliance rumours from Cairo may be that unofficial feelers have been put out to revive negotiations for revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian Alliance, following the return to the Egyptian Foreign Ministry of Ahmed Khazhaba Pasha.

The Egyptian Ambassador in London is reliably expected to call on Mr. Ernest Bevin soon. An appointment for him to call at the Foreign Office yesterday was cancelled at the last minute. Observers here said that though Britain and the United States may have discussed jointly whether circumstances are propitious for reopening negotiations to revise the Anglo-Egyptian Alliance, they considered it out of the question that the United States should be a party to such negotiations.

In Washington, the Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, described the Alliance reports as somewhat fanciful.—Reuter and United Press.

SWEDISH REJECTION OF SOVIET PROTEST

'AUSSIE AIR FORCE DOES NOT EXIST'

Melbourne, March 2.

The former Deputy Chief of the Australian Air Staff, Air Vice-Marshal J. D. Bostock, said here today that in his view the Royal Australian Air Force just does not exist as a fighting force.

"Whether we like it or not, our young men must be asked to give up 12 months of their lives between the ages of 18 and 20 to be trained to defend their country," he said.

Ground facilities and communications should be developed in preference to aircraft, the Vice-Marshal added. Even twice the number of aircraft now available will not make the RAAF a striking or defence force if the ground organisation is left in its present woeful condition, he said.

Once the ground organisation is established, it will be simple to fly in trained crews and modern aircraft should the Commonwealth face an emergency, he added.

Earlier today, 50 frontline planes "attacked" Canberra on instructions from the Minister of Defence, Mr. J. H. Dedman, after Opposition critics had said the Australian Air Force is too weak to fly in a whole squadron.—Reuter.

Illicit Love Cause Of Riots?

Durban, March 2.

The chief Native Commissioner for Natal, Major M.L.C. Lefeldt, alleged today that widespread illicit sexual relations between Indian males and Zulu native girls were one of the main causes of the recent native Indian riots.

Major Lefeldt testified before the commission of inquiry into the riots, which resulted in vast loss of life and damage to property. He said that miscegenation and the operation of Indian-owned buses and taxis in native areas, thus allowing Indians to come into contact with native women, was a major cause of Indo-native friction in Natal.

"At Edendale alone, more than 60 native girls have been seduced, and this is only an example of what is going on all over Natal," said the Commissioner.

He quoted resolutions from District Councils and native chiefs that had requested legislation prohibiting illicit relations between natives and Indians.—United Press.

Goebbels' Producer To Be Tried

Hamburg, March 2.

Veit Harlan, favourite film producer of the Nazi Propaganda Minister, Josef Goebbels, will appear before a Hamburg court tomorrow, accused of crimes against humanity.

The main charge against him is that he produced a distorted anti-Semitic version of Feuchtwanger's famous novel, "The Jew Suss." The film will be shown to the court.

More than 35 people, including prominent figures in the German film world have been summoned as witnesses. Herr Feuchtwanger, now in the United States, has sent a telegram saying that for health reasons he cannot appear.

The witnesses will include Harlan's wife, Swedish-born Kristina Söderbaum, and leading German film and stage actresses. Several of her recent stage performances were interrupted by the audience. On one occasion the American military police had to intervene to provide protection.—Reuter.

Father And Son In Big Racket

Madrid, March 2.

A father and son are among nine men gaoled in Madrid's flour scandal trial.

For selling 5,000 tons of flour on the black market, the father, Jose Maria Blanco Folguera, manager of a flour pool for Madrid bakeries, was sentenced to six years' imprisonment.

He was slated to have diverted 500 railway waggons of flour to pastry cooks.

His son, Manuel Blanco Folguera, secretary of the flour pool, got five years. They were found to have been chiefly responsible for the actions of their employees.—Reuter.

Stockholm, March 2.

Sweden has rejected outright the Soviet note of February 28 alleging that Latvian, Estonian and Lithuanian nationals have been persecuted in Sweden, it was officially announced tonight.

A Swedish Foreign Office spokesman told Reuter that the reply met Russia's protest point by point.

"It is easy to do so," the spokesman added, "because all the facts are on our side."

He said Russia's note was not handed to the Swedish Foreign Office by a member of the Russian Embassy staff here, but was delivered by a messenger as a letter. For this reason, he said, the Swedish Foreign Office does not regard the protest as a formal demarche.

The Swedish Premier, M. Tage Erlander, told Reuter tonight: "No Baltic whether it be Estonian, Latvian or Lithuanian is prevented from leaving Sweden if he wishes to do so. We would never hold anyone back who wants to leave Sweden of his own free will."

The Police Superintendent of Stockholm, Mr. Hasselrot, described the Russian allegations of abuse and threats against Balts wishing to return home as nonsense.

He said: "We will prevent no Balts from leaving Sweden, provided, of course, they are not guilty of any crime."

Interference

The Soviet note asked for the release of an Estonian, Erik Suurvaelt, arrested by the Swedish police on espionage charges. It said that the police authorities had subjected Soviet citizens to illegal interrogation, house searches and even threats and abuses, as part of a campaign to hinder the legitimate activities of the Soviet Embassy for the repatriation of Soviet citizens.

Stockholm Radio described Suurvaelt as an Estonian-born employee of the Soviet Embassy, who had pleaded guilty in a secret trial to illegal intelligence activities.

Swedish legal experts regard the Russian note as direct interference in Sweden's internal affairs. They said exit permits are unknown in Sweden because anyone, whether a Swede or a foreigner, may leave the country freely without formality.

They said that less than one per cent of the 25,000 Balts in Sweden had returned home in the past two years.

War Of Nerves

The Liberal "Aftonbladet," Scandinavia's biggest evening newspaper, said today: "The note is a reminder to Sweden that the world is divided into two blocs and is a parallel to Russia's note to Norway, offering her a non-aggression pact."

"It is part of the war of nerves being waged in Scandinavia," the Swedish reply, handed to the Soviet Embassy tonight, said. "The Swedish Foreign Office received with great surprise the allegations contained in a Russian note, that Swedish authorities have tried through improper methods to prevent people of Baltic birth from returning to their home country in accordance with their wishes."

"The allegation that the Swedish police used such methods is pure fantasy. The Swedish

Rope Walker's Daughter Dies

London, March 2.

Mrs. Charlotte Blondin Robollo, daughter of Charles Blondin, the famous French-born tight-rope walker, died last night in hospital at Worthing, aged 83.

Blondin, who twice crossed Niagara Falls on a tight rope, often carried his daughter during his exhibitions, either tied on his back or in a wheelbarrow. Mrs. Robollo ended her days in a home for the blind in Worthing and died after a fall.—Reuter.

Don't Know They're Alive

Sydney, March 2.

"American women, don't know they're alive," Dr. Muriel Mollrath said on her return from a tour of Europe and the United States.

Dr. Mollrath, a gynaecologist, said American women are being ruined by labour-saving devices. She cited dish-washing machines, garbage-disposal sinks and other gadgets.

"The Americans have everything," she said. "Some of their devices make me green with envy—but they don't know they're alive. They haven't enough to do."—United Press.

Round-Up Of Communists In France

Paris, March 2.

The police have seized two more suspected Communist agents and are investigating 20 others in an effort to destroy the web of Communist espionage.

The Minister of the Interior, M. Jules Moch, outspoken foe of Communism, told the Cabinet that eight have been arrested. The Government is doing everything in its power to wipe out the threat to national security, he said.

One of the new arrests was Paul Moret, who was Chief of Cabinet in the Ministry of Industrial Production under the Communist Marcel Paul, two years ago.

Well-dressed in a grey suit and carrying a briefcase stuffed with papers, Moret was taken before the Army examining magistrate shortly before noon for questioning.

Two French Army officers are charged with giving military secrets to a foreign power. It is generally believed that the power is either Poland or Yugoslavia.

The Communist spy hunt in Paris has been going on for five days.—United Press and Associated Press.

London, March 2.

Vice-Admiral Sir Harold Kinnahan, aged 55, is to succeed Major-General F. St. D.B. Lejeune as President of the Ordnance Board. It was officially announced today.—Reuter.

Burma Rice Stocks Rot

Rangoon, March 3.

Large rice stocks at Burma's rice port of Bassein are rotting, according to trade sources here. They say that 14 out of the 15 rice-producing districts of Burma are peopled predominantly by Karens, who are now fighting the Government for a separate state of their own.

The Burmese Government is asking shipping companies to enter Bassein on their own initiative to collect rice stocks earmarked for export overseas, according to shipping sources.

The companies are said to have asked the Government for guarantees of safe conduct or payment of compensation in event of damage to the ships and injury to personnel.—Associated Press.

Britain Develops New Jet Bombers

London, March 2.

Britain is developing as fast as possible several types of exceptionally high performance jet bombers, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Lord Henderson, told Parliament today.

He was replying to a debate in the House of Lords in which Lord Templewood, an Opposition Conservative Member, called attention to the urgency of strengthening the Royal Air Force in the interests of home defence, the Western Union and Atlantic security.

Lord Henderson said the Royal Air Force already has the world's best jet fighters.

Answering charges of secrecy, he said the Government has evidence from captured documents that German Intelligence Staff made extensive use of pre-war Royal Air Force statistics.

"We do not want to make a similar present now to any unfriendly power," he remarked.

Lord Templewood, a former Air Minister, had suggested that Britain should build up an Air Force of 180 to 200 squadrons.

"If we had such a force, Western Europe would breathe a sigh of relief," he declared. Lord Vansittart, former diplomatic adviser to the Government, referred to recent statements by French and Italian Communist leaders that they would welcome the Soviet Army in the event of a Russian invasion. "That is quite clearly an invitation to Soviet aggression," he said, "and the cheapest way to stop aggression is by a powerful Air Force."

"We need it right now," he asserted.

Non-Stop Round-World Flight By U.S. Bomber

Fort Worth, Texas, March 2.

Strict secrecy veils a history-making non-stop round-the-world flight which ended here today of a United States B-50 bomber.

Not a word was made public until the bomber landed. Air Force officials said the secrecy is designed in part to test their own security efficiency.

The bomber, a modernised version of the B-29 Superfortress, but termed a medium bomber in relation to the vast B-36 which is now the chief United States heavy bomber, landed here today, carrying fuel for seven hours, 30 minutes more flying.

The Air Force announced that the operation will be repeated regularly.

The United States Air Secretary, Mr. Stuart Symington, General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, the Air Force Chief of Staff, and other high officials were present at the landing.

The 14 crew members stepped out obviously tired. They had worked in shifts as they flew endlessly over four continents.

Mr. Stuart Symington said: "It is an epochal step in the development of air power."

The unofficial elapsed time for the trip was 94 hours, one minute. The bomber's average speed was 329 miles an hour. The plane left Fort Worth at 5:21 p.m. GMT last Saturday, together with part of the Eighth Air Force and headed Eastwards for the Azores.

The flight had started the day before but was cancelled when one engine caught fire. At the end of the first 2,893-mile leg, over the Azores, the first string of "flying tankers"—specially converted B-29s—rose to meet the plane.

By Sunday, the bomber, described as being fully combat equipped, was flying high over Gibraltar, across North Africa to Khartoum, to Durban, in the South Arabian Desert, where another mid-air refuelling took place.

Its four 3,500-horse power motors purred steadily, the bomber aimed next across the heart of India, skimmed the Southern tip of Burma and went on across French Indo-China to the Philippines.

Here again it took on another fuel load, through pipes dangled from the Superfortress tankers, and here the tricky operation was the most important of all since the longest leg of the flight—8,500 kilometres across the empty Pacific to Hawaii lay before them. There was no hitch.

The refuelling operation was repeated for the fourth and last time over the Hawaii Islands late yesterday—and they drove straight in towards the American mainland.

The last leg of the journey to Fort Worth was 6,000 kilometres, bringing the total distance covered to approximately 23,000 miles.

Air Force officials regard the feat as a concrete illustration of their ability to bombard any point on the earth from the bases already available to the United States Air Force.

The first round-the-world flight was made in 1933 by the American, Wiley Post, who completed his 15,500-mile trip in 187 hours.—Reuter.

GERMAN STATUTE APPROVED

Frankfurt, March 2.

The three Western Military Governors today reached full agreement on a small list of recommendations concerning the German draft Constitution, General Lucius D. Clay, the United States Military Governor, announced.

The recommendations now go to the Bonn Constituent Assembly.

General Clay said the Military Governors are not formally committing their respective Governments but that it is a fair assumption that the Constitution will be approved by the Allies if the recommendations are heeded.

The recommendations do not interfere with the proposal in the German draft Constitution that Berlin be recognised as the 12th State of the West German Federation.

The main part of the recommendations deals with the distribution of financial powers. The Allied powers are aiming at a division of taxes under three groups, Federal, concurrent and State taxes. Only Customs and excise duties will be purely Federal.—Reuter.

Two-Hour Nightmare Gale Wrecks Town

Brisbane, March 2.

A 120-mile an hour cyclone, with torrential rains, struck Gladstone and other Queensland coastal towns today, killing four people and injuring many and wrecking hundreds of homes.

Damage to property at Gladstone is estimated between Austr. £300,000 and £400,000. An eyewitness said that Gladstone lived through a two-hour nightmare.

At the height of the storm, two churches and a convent crashed to the ground and roofs were ripped off more than 60 houses.

Many people were injured by flying iron, glass and roofing fragments, and 300 found themselves without homes.

Later the cyclone swept Northward, and hit Rockhampton. Several small craft were sunk there, and power was cut off. Roofs were torn off houses and many people were injured.

In Maryborough, South of Gladstone, floods were two feet deep in the streets.

In Europe, West Germany today reported 24 dead and 90 injured in the gales which have swept Europe these last two days. Heavy snowstorms following the gales blocked country roads and delayed rail traffic in Czechoslovakia.

Elsewhere, Europe is recovering from the damage and floods. Hall and snow fell in Paris today after a sunny morning. Southern France was swept by a "mistral", which blasted the coast. Rome Radio reported tonight a day-long snowfall in Naples, accompanied by strong gales.

Gales are also blowing in Bari and Foggia, in Southern Italy, it said.

Reports from Cairo said a sandstorm today stopped all flying at Farouk and El Maza airports on the fringe of the desert outside Cairo, upsetting the schedules of British Overseas Airways, Trans-World Airlines and European Airlines.

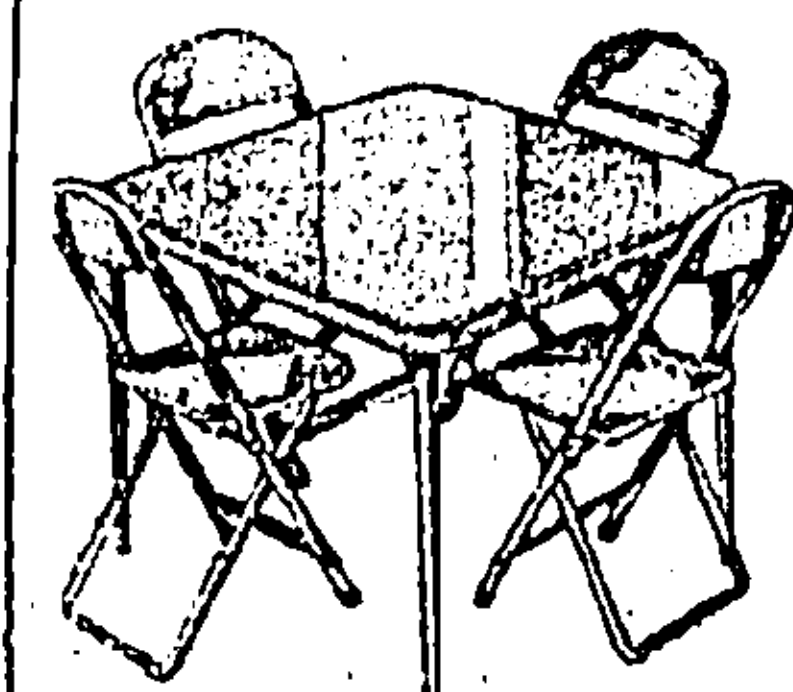

Six people are reported dead in gale accidents in Belgium. In Britain, floods estimated to have caused £500,000 worth of damage in the East of England county of Norfolk are receding, but some snow fell. Some parts of North England report four inches of snow.

The Thames flood peril in London has eased and the river has returned to its normal height.—Reuter.

PLANES NEVER CAME BACK

Canberra, March 2. Mr. Arthur Drakeford, Australian Air Minister, today told Parliament that his Department is investigating the failure to return home of two aircraft recently allowed to leave Australia.

One of these is reported to be disabled at Tel Aviv, while the location of the other is not known, he said.—Reuter.

Skymaster's Lucky Break

New York, March 2. A Bombay-bound DC-4 Skymaster, with 33 people aboard, hit ground wire installations but landed safely at Gander, Newfoundland, last night, Trans-Continental and Western Airlines said today.

The plane, with 24 passengers and a crew of nine, was making an instrument landing approach to the field when it struck the wires, the Company said. It had left LaGuardia Field here yesterday afternoon.

Officials of the company said that arrangements are being made for the passengers to continue their trip by Reuter.

BANGKOK MOVE TO SETTLE FRICTION

Bangkok, March 2.

The creation of a six-man Commission to settle the friction between the Army and the Navy, which caused last week-end's bloodshed in Bangkok, was announced today.

The announcement was made by Major-General Serisid Dhanaratch, newly appointed commander of the Army forces in the Bangkok area.

Major-General Dhanaratch's appointment removes from direct control of any Army formations Lieutenant-General Luang Kach Songgram, the extremist organizer of the Army group which returned the present Premier, Marshal Pibul Songgram, to the leadership in Siam in November, 1947.

Luang Kach Songgram is said to have been the focal figure in the recent rupee scandal involving allegations of foreign exchange frauds in Army overseas buying. The rupee scandal made him an important figure of contention in the Pibul Songgram regime.

Luang Kach Songgram commanded the Army in their raid on the Government police station on Saturday night after a fake broadcast announcing a new Government.

The raid caused confused shooting between soldiers and police before the main Army and Navy street battles.

Today, the city is quiet but are still without an answer to two key questions:

1. Whether the "Free Thai" elements, setting off the fighting, had any prearranged support for an apparent attempt to overthrow Marshal Songgram's military regime.

2. Whether the fighting was the outcome of the long-standing Army and Navy tension, touched off by the Army's killing of a Marine at the height of Saturday night's tension.—Reuter.

NORTH ATLANTIC PACT ISSUES ALL SETTLED

Washington, March 3.

The U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, indicated today that all major issues involved in writing the North Atlantic security treaty have been settled.

The seven countries drafting the pact, however, have not yet determined what other nations should be brought in as original signers, he disclosed. The question of inviting Italy is receiving especially careful study.

(In Copenhagen, diplomatic informants said that Denmark may formally accept on Thursday an invitation to talk on the projected North Atlantic treaty.)

Mr. Acheson told a news conference that he does not know of any outstanding differences on the text of the treaty.

He expects to meet with the Ambassadors of Britain, France, Canada, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg on Thursday and possibly again early next week to try to wind up details of drafting.

The treaty will commit the United States and all other member nations to resist an attack against any one of them, but each country will decide what steps it will take in fulfilling the commitment.

Italian Issue

Mr. Acheson said he hopes to make the text public before it is signed.

Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had declared earlier that it should not be made public until after signing, lest some unforeseen question arise and cause trouble.

While not commenting directly on Mr. Connally's view, Mr. Acheson said that before the text is released, it will have to be agreed to by all the countries involved. He thereby appeared to rule out the probability of some unforeseen issue coming up.

On the question of Italy, Mr. Acheson declined to go into any detail. The Ambassadors and he have been discussing the possibility of other nations joining in the project, he said, and the Italian matter is still under discussion.

Portugal's Part

Nations which appear reasonably sure of early invitations are Norway and Denmark and probably Iceland and Portugal.

From other informants it is learned that new and unexpected opposition has arisen to making Italy one of the original signers.

But it is reported that a compromise may be worked out, whereby Italy can adhere to the pact immediately after the other nations have signed it.—Associated Press.

BAO DAI HENCHMEN MURDERED

Saigon, March 2.

Two of the supporters of Bao Dai, ex-Emperor of Annam, have been assassinated.

They are Tran Dinh Hanh, brother of Tran Dinh Que, physician and adviser to Bao Dai, and Cao Hun Thoms, Vice-President of the Vietnamese National Rally, a group of small parties.

The assassinations were carried out at Hue, ancient capital of Annam, French Indochina.

Un Guy, father of Bun Hoi, a well-known chemist now living in France, was carried off along with his family.

Tran and Cao were leading Nationalists not connected with Dr. Ho Chi Minh's Vietnam Party.

Bao Dai, who is returning to Indochina as head of the state of Vietnam this month, is expected to reside in Hue.

Meanwhile, in Paris, the French Cabinet today approved the creation of an elected Territorial Assembly in the autonomous Indo-Chinese Republic of Cochinchina.

The Assembly will have two sections, French and Cochinese, which will sit together, the official Government spokesman told reporters.

It will be asked for advice on the future constitutional status of Cochinchina.—Reuter.

Court Upholds Right To Expel

Sydney, March 2.

The New South Wales State Court today held that the Australian Returned Servicemen's League is entitled to expel a member because he is a Communist or a Communist sympathiser.

The Court dismissed the suit of Arthur Bergeest, of Sydney, the expelled member, against his expulsion. The case was an appeal against the decision of a lower court, confirmed by the State Supreme Court. The original judge had decided that one of the rules of the League, forbidding conduct unbecoming a gentleman or subversive of the objects of the League, was not synonymous with Communism.

The State Court consists of the Supreme Court sitting in a full court. It is the highest judicial body of the State.—Reuter.

Two Robbers Sentenced To Seven Years Each

Found guilty on a charge of robbery, Shek Yau alias Lo See-ling, fish dealer, was sentenced by Mr. Justice Reynolds (Additional Judge) to seven years' hard labour and 10 strokes at the Criminal Sessions yesterday.

Lai Fuk alias Ko Lo-fuk, fisherman, who had pleaded guilty to the same charge at the opening of the Sessions, was also sentenced by Mr. Justice Reynolds to seven years' hard labour and 10 strokes.

Ng Kau-mui, wife of Shek Yau alias Lo See-ling, who was originally charged with him and with Lai Fuk alias Ko Lo-fuk, was discharged by Mr. Justice Reynolds when the Crown intimated that it was not proposed to offer any evidence against her. On hearing that she had been discharged, Ng Kau-mui smiled and said, "Thank you, My Lord."

The case for the prosecution was conducted by Mr. M. Heenan, Crown Counsel, assisted by Detective Inspector C. J. Askew. Mr. Heenan said that the robbery was committed on November 14, at a spot called Tai Mui, which was within British territorial waters.

The complainant, Lai Chuen, who was the victim of a robbery, had on the previous afternoon loaded it with cargo to be brought into Hong Kong.

Cargo Contents

The cargo consisted of 15 four-gallon tins of peanut oil, 24 chickens, one pig, 200 cabbages of rice, some clothing and about 10 cabbages of charcoal.

The complainant said that he was intercepted by another sampan, on which there were at least four persons. He was ordered by the persons in the other sampan to stop moving. Three of them were armed with pistols and one with a rifle.

After complainant had obeyed the order to stop, the armed men boarded his sampan and ordered him and his crew of three into a hatch, which was then covered with matting.

While imprisoned in the hatch, complainant and his crew heard the cargo being removed. The next thing which complainant felt was his sampan running aground.

He and his crew were taken off the sampan and up the hill into a cave, where they were armed men and guarded by two armed men. On the afternoon of November 15, complainant and his crew found that they were no longer guarded. They immediately left the cave and after recovering their sampan, set sail for Hong Kong, where a report portunities of the land forces should be such as to make assurance doubly sure. Indeed, for the land forces the scale of attack might well be doubled, namely, 200,000 men distributed as suggested [i.e., in the proportion suggested] by the First Sea Lord. Our Home Army is already at a strength when it should be able to deal with such an invasion, and its strength is rapidly increasing. Even while these documents were being considered and printed the situation had begun to change in a decisive manner. Our excellent Intelligence confirmed that the operation "Sea-lion" had been definitely ordered by Hitler and was in active preparation. It seemed certain that the man was to try, moreover, the front to be attacked was altogether different from or additional to the East coast on which the Chiefs of the Staff, the Admiralty and I, in full agreement, still laid the major emphasis.

But thereafter came a rapid transformation. A large number of self-propelled barges and motor-boats began to pass by night through the Straits of Dover, creeping along the French coast and gradually assembling in all the French Channel ports from Calais to Brest. Our daily photographs showed this movement with precision. It had not been found possible to re-ly our minefields close to the French shore. We immediately began to attack the vessels in transit with our small craft and Bomber Command was concentrated upon the new set of invasion ports now opening upon us.

At the same time a great deal of information came to hand about the assembly of a German

'Guinea Pig' A Success On 'Big Opening Night'

(By KIMBERLEY)
 Philippa Coombes' Stage Club production of Warren Chatham Strode's "The Guinea Pig" sets a new and fresh standard in the local theatre platform, surpassing even Reinhold Obilias' SRO presentation of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" staged last year.

Guinea Pig, now running at the China Fleet Club, has all the qualifications to merit it as the best Hong Kong stage effort of the post-war period. Philippa Coombes' production displays a cast of new players. Stage direction is neat and precise, and the play is well chosen.

The first night of Guinea Pig yesterday brought out a new first-man of the footlights in Derek Orchard. His portrayal of the warm-hearted, understanding master of Sainsbury Public School, is projected from a good knowledge of stage craft, clear diction and an altogether easy and natural pose.

Guinea Pig tells the story of a changing world. It inspires new ideas against a world rooted and chained in the slavery of traditions. It is a story of the centuries-old English Public School and its growth into an age of realism and personal liberty.

The Guinea Pig is a very ordinary English boy a clever performance by Laurence Blenkin placed into a social test tube to solve a big problem of our modern society. Sainsbury Public School is the experiment ground and the House Master (excellently played by Viv Garton) an ageing barren soil upon which a new idea must grow. The contest is bitter but clearly fought, the answer, everyone hopes, will be found in the philosophy of the Guinea Pig.

Guinea Pig comes as a pleasant surprise to those sceptical to reform plays. It deceives them in its honest strive to entertain, and it succeeds.

It is unsurprisingly critical of the public school system in its attempt to be exclusive. But it is equally generous in treating the system's finer constituents.

The dialogue gives the play mobility which is lacking in its action. But it is the efforts of the players that makes its Guinea Pig the local success that it was on the Stage Club's first night.

They include Winnie Cox as Mrs. Hartley, the kind wife of a tradition-bound House Master; her daughter, Lynn (Yvonne Charter) who finds romance growing with the new idea; Stringer (John Charter) the just Head; Grinnett (David Green) the blow to the House Master's idea of a gentleman; John Randall, John Keates, R. Romer and J. Hotted.

By Night
 The Chiefs of Staff Committee, after another review of all our information, replied to this paper by a report from Colonel Hollis, who acted as their Secretary. Even while these documents were being considered and printed the situation had begun to change in a decisive manner. Our excellent Intelligence confirmed that the operation "Sea-lion" had been definitely ordered by Hitler and was in active preparation. It seemed certain that the man was to try, moreover, the front to be attacked was altogether different from or additional to the East coast on which the Chiefs of the Staff, the Admiralty and I, in full agreement, still laid the major emphasis.

Safeguard Needed In Gold Sales

Washington, March 2.

The United States Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. John Snyder, today supported the International Monetary Fund's call for greater safeguards in the sale of South African semi-processed gold. Mr. Snyder told a press conference that he believes the present world price for gold should not be changed.

(The South African Finance Minister, Dr. N. C. Havenga, said last week that the Union's sale in London of semi-processed gold at a premium price is an experiment. South Africa would give serious attention to any practicable precautions that the Monetary Fund might suggest, he added.

Mr. Snyder said: "I have said

many times before, and I reiterate

now, that I believe the present

price should be maintained."
